EDITORIAL BRIEFS.

HENSEL cries, "Send money to me, or Beaver the governor will be."

HON. W. W. BETTS, of Clearfield, is the Democratic nominee for State Senator in this district.

How do you like the nomination of Mr. Hall, Democratic friends? Its almost equal to your county ticket.

THE nomination of James K. Polk Hall has fallen like a wet blanket upon the democracy of Centre county.

BEAVER'S enthusiastic reception in the western part of the State is very gratifying. He will be elected by 100,000 majority.

NOW THAT you have paid your taxes, the next thing will be to vote for Boal, Love and Mattern and all the rest of the Republican ticket.

SENATOR WALLACE didn't know whether or not to accept a Congressonal nomination if it was tendered. He has decided now not to accept.

CAN James K. Polk Hall tell the friends of Mr. Curtin how it is that his county of Elk give a majority of 1261 for Patton, the independent republican candidate, in 1884?

THERE is a violent dispute as to the conditions of Geronimo's surrender. If the War Department were only awake and willing to publish the official reports all this unhappy controversy might be avoided.

GEN. BEAVER is enthusiastically received wherever he goes and the outlook becomes more encouraging from day to day. If Hensel succeeds in keeping his majority below 80 000 he will have to work harder than ever he did before.

IT looks somewhat as though Russia had got into a position where she will either have to fight or back down. And it may be observed that a nation that goes in to pre-empt the earth is generally reluctant to back down.

THERE have been heavy frosts in the interior of the state, and it is yet impossible to tell how much the Chauncey Black boom has been injured by them. There is some fear, however, that the aggressiveness of the property has been badly nipped.

THE Democratic candidate for governor of New Jersey appears to be an oleomargarine sort of statesmen and the farmers of that state are rising against him because of his opposition to the bogus butter law. The chances are that he will be beaten with farmers' clubs.

EVERY man on the Republican county ticket deserves your support. The Democrats have reason to be discontented with their candidates and the way they were nominated. If they will vote for Love, Mattern, Boal and all the rest of the Republican county ticket they will elect good men and do themselves credit.

They Are Afraid.

Nothing can be more evident than that the Democrats are afraid to meet the tariff question. This is proven true by the frantic efforts they make to have it banished from thought and discussion during every campaign. While the late lamented Gen. Hancock was the Democratic nominee in a National contest the most strenuous efforts were made by the Democrats to impress the people with the belief that the tariff was a local issue. Now, when the Republicans attempt to talk upon it in connection with a State campaign the Democrats are as eager to restore it to its former position as a National issue, saying that States, Governors and Legislatures have nothing to do with it. It is difficult to deal with these Democrats, as it is difficult to find them and impossible to please them.

Now, the truth is that they are afraid of the tariff issue, and hence try to eliminate it from every contest. It is certainly of vast importance. No more important question was ever discussed by the people of this country, and it divides the parties squarely. It equally concerns State and National elections and the triumph of a party in any sort of a contest is, to a certain extent, an expression of the will of a people concerning the tariff.

The history, the platforms and the opinions of leading men of the Democratic party make it unmistakably a free trade party, as do the same elements of the Republican party as certainly point to it as the party of protection. If the Democratic party triumphs in Pennsylvania it causes a shudder to agitate business in all parts of the country. It shows a change in the sentiments of the people of a State—long known as the keystone of the arch and the richest State in the Union—which is destructive of all true business prosperity.

We regret that so many business men, laborers and farmers are deceived in this question by people who are in the service of England to promulgate free trade doctrines. We are ready to concede that, over and above all other aspects of the question, it is a National question. It has no special local significance at all. It is not true that protection will aid one while it may harm another. It is not true that it will benefit the mechanic to the injury of the farmer. All classes are alike benefitted by it. It is not true that it contributes to monopoly; and to say, as some do, that the rich are made richer by it while wages are reduced is a shameful distortion of the truth. The real truth is, that it first helps the producer and makes him more prosperous. By helping him it gradually diffuses its aid through all classes, whether they are producers or not and aids all to the same extent. It makes the one whom it first helps, to desire a greater quantity of all that goes to make up the good things of life, it provides him with more money with which to provide for his wants, and thus it affects all, just as does the air we breathe. The evils, if evils there are, are the result of other circumstances, which must be adjusted independently of the tariff. A great factor of our individual and national prosperity is a high tariff, and in that view of it let us do all we can this fall to aid the tariff party.

It Should be Paid.

E. Holmes & Co., of Saratoga, who had something to do with the work of embalming the body of General Grant, should be paid for their services, and it seems to us that the proper spirit of honor in connection with this affair would induce any one of the friends to pay it, if they can afford to, and several of them are known to be rich enough. It is true that in the fuss and flurry which attended the great man's death several firms were ordered to do the work by persons whose only thought was that it should be done, without considering the expense. It seems to be certain that E. Holmes & Co. assisted, and although two bills of $500 each is a rather steep price to pay for embalming a body, the price should be paid and no one should be allowed to go unrewarded for professional services performed for one whose funeral was attended and who was mourned for by the whole nation. We thank the editor of the New York Sun for the offer to pay the bill.

THE St. Paul Globe believes it has proof that the late Emory Storrs was murdered, by poison, administered by his enemies. They gave it to him in his liquor. It is about time to arrest somebody.

A Significant Contrast.

The different results reached by Henry George and Johann Most says the Pittsburg Dispatch, are instructive. Mr. Most for many years back has had an indictment against the workings of the present industrial and social system. Born and brought up in Europe he saw royalty and aristocracy making a bitterly uneven division of those material things that go to make men comfortable. Supporting their control by sheer force, imposing by audacity on the ignorance and helplessness of the hewers of wood and drawers of water, Most's plan of working redress was by conspiracy and secret violence. When he came to the United States he found here no royalty or aristocracy, but simply people who, whatever they might think of the need for a better state of affairs on this side also, understood their free institutions sufficiently well to be aware that any desired reform could be had peaceably by the ballot whenever the people were fully persuaded of its safety and desirability. Most's method of persuasion was by advocating the bomb for dissenters. He is himself in prison, and six of his ultra followers are condemned to death at Chicago.

Mr. Henry George is an American with quite as strong adverse views about existing systems as Mr. Most. Knowing fully, however, that this is a Government by the people themselves, he undertook to advance his peculiar theories by addressing men's reason. The wide latitude for free speech and free writing under the Constitution—and even for that matter in Great Britain and Ireland as well as the United States—gave him abundant chance to be heard by everybody in both countries. Though his doctrines would be held by many as scarcely, if at all, less revolutionary than these of the most advanced Socialists, he was not prevented from having an audience. More than this, he got a numerous following; and he is now a candidate for Mayor of New York, not of his own seeking, but at the signed request of 30,000 actual voters, who are at least so far intelligent factors of the Government that they were all able to write their names. Upon the platform to ratify the nomination of Mr. George, in speeches, were several college professors and two well-known Christian clergymen, Rev. Heber Newton, of the Episcopalian, and Father McGlynn, of the Roman Catholic church. The newspapers, too, while without exception antagonistic both to George's theories and to his candidacy, gave him a full and respectful hearing.

Prohibition Rally in Stormstown Sunday Evening, October 3.

Under the title "An indirect bid for the Republicans to vote the Democratic ticket through Wolf," our correspondent writes: "Mrs. Emmons delivered a political prohibition speech (called lecture) in the Methodist church in Stormstown, on Sunday evening, which has caused the just censure of all Christian and well-thinking people. It was from beginning to end a tirade on the Republican party, the only party that is truly in favor of temperance. Why is it that for the last year the temperance people have lectured here often and have asked for just what the Republican party have put in their platform, and now they say they do not want that? They say they want representation, they want to make their own laws. Suppose they do elect their governor and all of the ticket and make their own laws. Will it be constitutional? or will it not be only for the time being, which the next legislature will repeal? Why does the prohibition party have to make political speeches on the Sabbath? Is not the Sabbath day to be respected and kept holy? Are six days in the week not enough to do political work, that the Sabbath must be desecrated by making assertions that have no foundation in fact? How much does the Democratic party contribute towards the support of the Prohibitionists for making war in the Republican party—the only true temperance party—and let the Democrat go Scott free, when they have evaded the temperance question altogether, and are even making in all their speeches a bid for the liquor vote. If these Prohibition speakers are not in the employ of the Democrat party, then why do they speak only in the townships which are largely Republican? You do not hear of them making any of their speeches in that part of the county called the "Solid South." We have listened to Francis Murphy and other temperance orators of note, but never heard them assail either party.

ONE WHO WAS THERE.

Our Opportunity.

If the Republicans of this congressional district cannot elect a congressman now, there is no virtue in the most favorable combination of circumstances that could possibly be brought about. A more exasperating nomination to a large faction of the Democratic party could not have been made than that of Hall. It is a direct insult to all the friends of Mr. Curtin. In the last election Hall turned Elk county against Curtin by a majority of 1261 when it should have gone at least 400 the other way. Can the friends of Curtin be expected to forget this and all turn in and help the traitor to the position he covets? We know Hall believes in the potency of money. We saw an evidence of that when he was a candidate before and came to Bellefonte and gave money to some men in sums larger than they ever had before, and we saw the effect of his method of electioneering when these same men stayed drunk from that time to the election. He is not particular whether a man is worth buying or not. In this way he is a public benefactor, because he helps the poor. But there is one drawback. He helps that class of poor who make a very poor use of money when they get it. That lessens the value of his peculiar charities.

Wonder if he expects to fix Centre county up now by the soothing influence of money placed here and there among the "gutter snipes," and if he will hand out fifty dollar bills to our unfortunate to get and keep drunk upon; and if he does, will this fix up the disgruntled democracy?

We do nothink by any means that the Curtin faction are the only democrats who could be displeased with this nomination. William A. Wallace, an ex-Senator and as good a democratic statesman as they have got, would have accepted the nomination had it been tendered to him in a decent way, but when he saw there was likely to be a wrangle he washed his hands of the whole business, withdrew his name, took up his coffee pot" and left, which was a very proper thing for a man of the ability and statesman experience of Wallace to do. How can the party that could have a giant like Wallace put up with a pigmy like Hall, who has no recommendation but his money and does not ask men to vote on principle but for five dollars? And this is our opponent. Will the people take such a man when they can have such candidates as Irvin of Clearfield or Coburn of Centre? Is not this our opportunity? If not, then may we indeed mourn at the deep damnation of our political condition.

EVERY democratic federal employee through the State, so far as known, has received a circular from the Democratic Committee indicating that a contribution to the Democratic campaign fund will be necessary, and the amount expected stated. This is one of the horrible practices of Republican committees of former years against which virtuous and indignant Democrats have always made the most boisterous complaints. It was inexpressibly shocking to the Democratic sense of propriety, whole barrels of tears were shed by democratic orators in sympathy for poor Republican clerks whose salaries were thus raided for campaign purposes. It seems, however, that it was wrong only when done by Republican committees and that the law made by a Republican administration to stop to it was only intended to be observed by Republicans.

FIGURE for James K. Polk Hall to study: 1884 the vote of Elk county for Cleveland was 1447, Blaine 1082, Butler St. John 31, Curtin, Dem., for Congress 674, Patton, Republican, 1935. Majority in favor of a Democratic president of 365, a majority against the Democratic Congressman (because it was on election day the only Democratic candidate) of 1261. Can Hall figure out any problem to satisfy the friends of Curtin that he acted on the square?

REMEMBER, please, that the Democratic party of this county is boss-ridden and it will do it good to defeat it at the polls this fall and thus purify it.

PROHIBITIONISTS in all parts of the State are declaring for Beaver. They know it is their interest to do so.

THE state campaign in Tennessee is the most remarkable that has ever taken place in the United States. "Bob" Taylor is the Democratic candidate for governor, and "Alf" Taylor, his brother, is the Republican nominee for the same office. The brothers are stumping the state together, in a grand joint debate. Bob tells funny stories, and makes the multitude laugh; Alf is a logician, a thinker, and compels the assent of the more intelligent and better educated of the joint audience. The brothers debate on the same platform, room at the same hotel, travel together on the cars and appeal to the suffrages of the same audiences. The Democratic candidate wants it understood that any one who insults the Republican candidate insults him. The Republican candidate says he loves his brother, but hopes the Democrats will be defeated. Bob goes in for a reduction of the tariff; Alf appeals for public education and the passage of the Blair bill. On the stump the two brothers exchange sharp hits, but the speeches over they repair to the hotel and play violin duets. The contest will show whether brains or bosh is the controlling influence with the majority of Tennesseeans.

IT IS not much wonder that the people of England are looking upon the matter of the settlement of the Irish question almost with despair. Nothing has been accomplished during the session of Parliament just ended, and the outlook is exceedingly gloomy. It is evident that the government is apprehensive of trouble in Ireland that will compel a re-assembling of Parliament again before January. Should that be the case, the result would be the passage of a severe coercion bill, the consequences of which cannot well be calculated. The present temper of the English people is strongly and firmly against disunion, under any circumstances. This was made evident at the last election. The only alternative is to give Ireland a large measure of local government and place her industries in her own hands for control. Whether the present Government will ever do that, or whether the Irish people will wait for the development of its policy remains to be seen.

AFTER a great deal of bulldozing Boss Wolfe succeded in preventing the dissatisfied Prohibitionists from holding a convention at Harrisburg to nominate another candidate for governor. He begged and implored, and promised almost everything he could think of, to be permitted to run. The Democratic managers interceded and did all they could to bring about some kind of a reconciliation between Wolfe and those who were sick of him, and they finally succeeded in patching up a truce. The whole scheme is in the interest of the Democratic and whiskey parties, and is no more calculated to benefit temperance than the presence of the devil would be to benefit a prayer meeting. If the Democrats can keep Wolfe on the track by the aid of money from the whiskey ring and his gullible followers will swallow him, their cup of happiness will be full.

SOME of the Democratic papers of this State, among them the Philadelphia Record, are urging Mr. Franklin B. Gowen to run on the Bourbon ticket for Congress, now that he has resigned the presidency of the Reading Railroad Company and his head is no longer filled with the affairs of that corporation. There is no doubt that Mr. Gowen could and would make a brilliant record as a Congressman, but our esteemed Democratic contemporaries are entirely too fast in summarily divorcing him from his interest in the affairs of the Reading road. When he resigned the presidency it was with the distinct understanding that he should be its chief legal adviser, in which his head will be as much taken up with questions concerning it as it ever was, especially now that the great corporation is to be reorganized on a plan of his own devising.

THE developments in regard to Democratic rascality in the management of the Ohio Penitentiary are growing richer as they go deeper. Many wagon loads of the stolen goods have been discovered and will be recovered by due process of law, and the books carried away in order to hide the wholesale stealing are being reclaimed. Evidence is cropping up all over the state as to the robberies, and there now seems to be little chance for the guilty officials to escape, and almost certain that they will find their level as inmates of the prison they formerly ruled. They were among the loudest howlers for reform, and will now have such a taste of it as they will not relish.

Our Story Teller.

THE WHITE LADY.

June 15th.—To-day rather a strange thing happened. Going into Bertie's dressing-room just before luncheon, I found her in a fit of hysterical crying. Something extraordinary in our quiet Bertie! She could give no reason, except that she felt low-spirited. I thought she had quarrelled with Guy; but no! Besides, he loves her far too well to quarrel over anything. So I think it is too much happiness!

June 28th.—At last I have something definite to write about. Until now there has been such a round of gaiety and fun, such a repetition of dancing, riding, driving, and singing, that my diary would have been day after day the same thing but for a bit of news. We are going to have some theatricals on the 12th, which is Guy's birthday, and a ball after. There was much deliberation about the comedie we were to act; and at last Lord Oldham said he would write one for us, founding it on an incident in the life of Madame de Lantremont, who was a beauty in the reign of Louis XVI. and an ancestress of his. It is chiefly this—that, having been reduced from riches to poverty by the Revolution, she makes use of her voice to obtain a livelihood, and during one of her street peregrinations she meets a young English officer who falls in love with her and ultimately becomes her husband. It is very well written, and the dialogue sparkles with wit. Lord Oldham is very spirituel. I am to play the Comtesse de Lucay, and Lord Oldham is to be stage manager. Guy won't play, as he says he has no talent that way. Bertie plays splendidly a little Marquise full of fun and coquetry. Altogether I think the comedie will be successful. Guy has had a stage and scenery erected in the library, and the drop-scene is beautiful. Our costumes, of course, come from Worth, Jean's from Elise, and they will be very pretty.

July 3d.—This evening we were sitting out on the lawn after dinner when old Collins, the butler, came up to Guy with a telegraphic despatch. He opened it, and, reading it, turned very pale.

"Is there the least possibility of my catching the last up-train, Collins?" he asked anxiously.

"Not the slightest, sir; it started at five to nine."

"When is the earliest to-morrow morning?"

"A quarter to eight, sir."

"Order the brougham round in the morning in time to catch that."

"No bad news, sir, I trust?" the old servant said.

"Captain Gordon is very ill, Collins. His mother writes that I shall hardly be in time," he added, turning to Jean, who grew pale at Guy's sorrow—for they are great friends, Guy and Hugh Gordon.

I remember well that the first time we saw Guy he was walking by his friend's chair at Mentone. That he loves him dearly no one can doubt. At the thought of his danger Guy looks haggard and pale already, and, as Bertie went up to him this evening, slipping her hand into his in mute sympathy, his lip quivered.

"Guy," I heard her whisper, "I am so grieved for you!"

"Thank you, my darling," he answered, in a low voice, and clasped her hand close.

They were sitting together when Miss Cathcart came up to Bertie and asked her to sing; but she refused; and Guy said—

"Let me have her quietly to myself this evening, Miss Cathcart. It is my last night, you know."

We separated earlier than usual, I bidding Guy good night and good-bye, as he leaves early in the morning; but Bertie persists in her desire to get up early and see him off. She looked white and ill to-night, and she had such a strange wistful expression in her eyes, as if she had a presentiment of coming ill. She clung to Guy sobbing to-night. He smiled down at her.

"Silly little one! Do you think I am to escape all sorrow?"

"I wish I could keep it from you, Guy."

"I must try to keep it from you, my darling," he said softly.

Suddenly Bertie put up her hands and drew his tall head down to hers and kissed him passionately.

"Oh, Guy, take care of yourself!" she said, in a voice so pathetic and full of tears. "You know what my life would be without you."

But all this is very sad, and, as Guy is going away only for three or four days at the most, Bertie is silly to grieve so much.

July 4th.—Jean tells me that the parting was very sad this morning, that Bertie tried to be brave, but broke down in a very unaccountable manner, and that Guy himself seemed strangely depressed. He must have dreamed an old dream last night, for it seems he thought he saw Jean entering his room in a white peignoir, and seemed surprised that she had not been there. Bertie has not been told of the dream. Guy told Jean not to mention it to her. Bertie made Guy promise to telegraph to her every night and every morning during the few days he will be away, which seems rather childish.

July 6th.—Guy's telegrams come regularly. Captain Gordon is better, he says, and he will be home soon. Our rehearsals have begun. I find my part very difficult, Milord is so exacting. I wonder if he would be equally exacting as a husband? What an idea! I wonder what makes me so nervous in my acting now? He complains that I don't throw fire enough into the part; and yet I can be earnest enough when his back is turned. Can it be possible that—— But no—I know so little of him; and, besides, one never loves a stranger. I will think of it no more.

July 8th.—Our costumes are arrived. They are really ravissantes. I am so glad! I want to be si belle on Thursday! Why? Ah, well, yes, I own that I am coquette! I want him to have some esteem for me—admiration—love!

July 10th.—Guy comes to-morrow evening. Bertie is radiant and flits about the house like a sunbeam. Guy will arrive just in time for our comedie, and his little fiancee looks ravissante in her toilette of Pompadour silk, her patches and powder.

I have first a court-dress, and then a plain gray dress with a Charlotte Corday cap. Lord Oldham likes the plain dress best; he said it suited me perfectly. He has made a sketch of Bertie for Guy. It is just like her—much more like than the picture Guy had done which hangs in the gallery. He made a sketch of me also; but he would not give it to me. He says he will do so when I have answered a question he is going to ask me. What is the question, I wonder—and what will my answer be?

July 11th.—I was awakened last night by Jeannette, Bertie's maid, knocking for me. Bertie had fainted dead away, and, when she came to herself, seemed half delirious with terror. She said she saw a white bird at her window in the night, and, as she was going to open the window, it flew upwards. She says Guy is ill or dying. A telegram from him has however changed the color of her ideas, and she has just run into my dressing-room, dressed in her marquise costume, to tell me to hurry, that the guests are arriving, and Guy will be here before I am coiffee.

PART III.—BY EVAN PALMER, M. D., OF TREDEGAR.

It is just five years ago to-night since I witnessed the saddest scenes I have ever, in my experience as a medical man, beheld, and which I can never forget. It was on this evening, the eleventh of July, in the year 18—, that there occurred that fearful railway-accident which is still recalled by the simple village folk with horror and grief too deep for words. It was about half-past seven, and a fair July evening; I was in my room, dressing for a ball and theatricals at Tredegar, when a man on horseback came dashing up, and in a moment Margery Dawse, my housekeeper, was knocking at my door, her face white with terror.

"For Heaven's sake, sir, go!" she said almost incoherently. "There has been a railway-accident at the station, and a number of people are dying!"

A few words from the messenger confirmed her statement; the down-train had dashed into an up-train from Launceston, and the casualties were fearful.

"Take my horse and go, Doctor," he said. "They are all at the station. Some are dead, others are dying, and the Squire——"

He paused, unable to proceed; and, springing upon his horse, I dashed off, trying to think it improbable that Guy Tredegar was in the collision, and praying that, if such had been the case, he had not been seriously hurt. Something brought to my mind Miss Leonhardt's bright face and velvety dark eyes, and I hoped that she was spared such sorrow. I found the little station in a terrible state of commotion. The collision had been a fearful one. Help had been obtained from all quarters; but the wayside station looked more like an ambulance than anything else, the sufferers being placed on mattresses, rugs, or benches, where some lay groaning, while others were in the stillness and silence of insensibility or death. For a moment I paused, hardly knowing where to begin, when Mr. Jamieson, the station-master, his white face full of perplexity, distress, and despair, caught me by the arm.

"Mr. Tredegar is here," he said brokenly; and he led me into his own cottage, where, on a couch, lay Guy Tredegar.

My first glance showed me that for him there was no hope. He was sensible, and gave me a faint smile.

"Don't waste your time here, Palmer," he said, in faint low tones; "there are others who need you. I am—dying! Rush—old fellow! Don't grieve. I am sure—I saw"—and he smiled again—"the White Lady the night—before I left town."

All my entreaties to be useful to him were in vain.

"Their need is greater than mine," he said. "Go to them, Palmer—only tell me before you go if—you think I shall live until Bertie comes."

He smiled at my eager affirmatives; and I went out to do my best for the sufferers, returning to him in an hour. His spine had been injured, and already the lower limbs were paralyzed. He looked up eagerly.

"Palmer, why doesn't Bertie come? I shall die without seeing her—poor little one! I should have been thirty to-morrow. Even—you see the White Lady keeps her word."

Even as he spoke, the sound of horses' hoofs and carriage-wheels suddenly stopping reached us.

"Yes," said the chairman sadly, "our temperance meeting last night would have been more successful if the lecturer hadn't been so absent minded." "What did he do?" "Why, he tried to blow the foam from a glass of water."

MARRYING UNDER DIFFICULTIES.

James Spooney, vulgarly called by his neighbors Spooney Jim, was the son of a well-to-do farmer in the state of P——. At the time he is introduced to the reader he is in his twenty-eighth year. He had never been very far from home, consequently has seen very little of the world. He was an industrious, harmless young man, whose fortune could never be made by his beauty. He was very tall, thin, and remarkably awkward, with small, dull-looking blue eyes of so pale a hue that they looked as if the color was faded out, abundant red hair, florid complexion and large coarse features.

However, there is no accounting for taste, for Jemima Jenkins, the daughter of an adjoining farmer, declared he was "jist the handsumist man she ever cast eyes upon."

Now, James had a great admiration for the fair damsel, who in her personal appearance was as little favored as himself. She was a short, stout, tow-headed girl, with a freckled skin, which looked as if the flies had been sporting with it. The ill-natured in the neighborhood who knew of their courtship earnestly hoped they might come together in matrimony, arguing that it would be a pity to spoil a good-looking couple with either.

One bright, sunny Sabbath afternoon in mid-summer, as Jim was lying upon the grass in front of the door of his father's house planning for the future, one of the first things that occurred to him was that he should get married.

"Dad's sot on it," he thought, "and so is mam, and I ort to try and please 'em—it's time. I could rent bid Jake Spangler's farm, and the money I've got inter the bank 'ill stock it, and Mimie's daddy he'll furnish the house like he did fur Mat Bunn, who married her sister Sally Ann. I think I'll jist go over to old Jenkins' and ask her—there's nothin' like strikin' while the iron's hot.

Suiting the action to the word he sprang up and started for the house, and neatly attired himself, putting some extra touches to his toilet before starting on his important mission. He looked decidedly gay when he had attired himself in his long gay linen coat, bright red waistcoat, straw hat with a blue ribbon around it, short, very wide linen pants, and large, heavy shoes. He made fast time as he crossed his father's farm, jumping fences and ditches until he found himself upon 'Squire Jenkins' land. As he neared the house he beheld his divinity sitting upon a grassy mound, beneath a large willow tree, some little distance from the house.

"Oh, glorious opportunity," though Jim. "I kin jist settle the matter now, makin' short work on it."

As he approached he felt a slight trembling of the limbs, a nervous sensation, but he made up his mind that he was not going to be frightened from his purpose.

"A gal kin only say no, to do her wust, and there's plenty on 'em if she does. They are jist as thick as black berries—I kin git another if she's contrary."

Summoning up his courage he shouted:

"Hallo, Minnie! be it you. How does yer be?"

"Fust rate, Jim! how be yer. I am glad yer come, fur I've bin looking fur yer."

"The purty critter, she's jist bustin' with luv fur me," soliloquised the lover.

"Is yer dog tied up, Minnie?" asked Jim, fur I'm afeard uv that cur," looking nervously around. "T'other night as Bill Jones an' me was goin' home frum here, he takes arter us. Bill he runs purty spry, he has big feet, he kin git over ground very handy, but jist as he went to jump over the horse trough he tripped, and in he goes. He hollered to me fur help, but laws! I jist keeps clear uv his way, when the tarnal critter leaves Bill and makes fur me, an' hangs on to my coat tail with sich a grip that when I managed to shake him off he had the whole uv my spankin' new coat tail inter his big jaws! Bill he jist stood and laughed fit to split hisself. He was mad cause he got a duckin'."

"Sakes alive! yer might have bin kilt," said Jemima. "I'll coax dad to shoot him."

"Mima," said Jim, anxious to proceed to business, while his face was as red as a beet, "I want ter ask yer somethin' pertickler. Yer kin either say yes or no, but o' course I'd sooner it was yes. Dad wants me ter git married, and so does mam, an' I reckon you'd suit as well as any one else, so I jist thought I'd ask yer."

Jemima simpered and hung her head—at last she said:

"There's Lydie Ann Blinker yer could git."

"Won't have her, 'cause she's lame."

"Well, Sally Jane Grubb—how do yer like her?"

"She won't do, 'cause she talks through her nose."

"There's Ruthie Simpkins, won't she suit you?"

"No, she won't now, 'cause she's blind in one eye."

"Yer jist too pertickler, Jim!" said Mima, delighted to think he preferred her to all others. "I won't praise any other girl to yer. Yer don't want to git married anyhow. What's the use uv yer foolin'?"

"Did the gal mean to say no? Lor, women was so queer," he soliloquized, and backed off, alarmed at Mimie's manner, knocking, as she did so, against and upsetting a hornet's nest, which so enraged the inmates that they made a grand attack on him.

"Oh, Jemima! Jemima! Jem!—take 'em off; oh, oh, blazes, oh!" and before she could realize the situation he rushed by like a flying machine, beating his limbs with his straw hat, his red hair fairly blazing in the sunlight.

There was no time for love or romance with poor Jim now—the situation was practical.

"Bless my stars!" exclaimed the terrified Jemima. "Jim Spooney has jist gone mad. Stop, Jim, stop, fur the land sake, stop!"

Not knowing what course to pursue, she stood looking in dismay after her swiftly departing lover. As he attempted to cross a creek he fell in, and some of his vicious enemies found a watery grave, others angrily clung to him. As he mounted a fence, and was about clearing it, an unmannerly bull (doubtless attracted by his red waistcoat) gave him a toss with his horns, sending him far into the meadow beyond. This last shot through the air, rocket-like, was the final view Jemima had of her lover.

There poor James lay for some time, smarting with pain, anger and disappointment. When he reached home although rid of his enemies, they had left their traces behind them. His head was swelled to twice its size, one eye was entirely closed, whilst his lips were a sight to behold.

"I'll not let Mimie go. I'll hang on, though if she should die I wouldn't try agin to git another gal. It's too much bother, but I'll be spunky this yer time, see if I don't."

"Yer jist right, Jimmy," said his fond mother, to whom these confidential remarks were made, looking woefully at her spectacle of a son. "Never give up, yer dad didn't when he came-a-courtin' me, I tell yer, and I jist had to marry him to git shut uv him. The next time yer go to see Mimie don't go 'shamed like through the back yard, but go to the front uv their house like a man, and ask fur the gal—that's the way big folks do."

So the next time he took his mother's advice, and arranged matters so satisfactorily with Jemima that it is reported they are to be married in the autumn by 'Squire Bellows.

He took her to a neighboring town to a circus a short time ago, and they were seen indulging in spruce beer and eating ice cream out of the same dish in a loving manner.

They looked very happy as they walked through the main street hand in hand—and in view of these extravagances the report of their approaching bliss is probably correct, and Miss Jenkins will be Mrs. Spooney.

Bill Nye.

The past few years have seen some wonderful changes in the matter of literature, and men have succeeded as bookmakers, who never tried it before, while patient toilers who relied upon writing books, have been driven to the wall by a mighty torrent of goods secured by the Captain Kidds of America, who have robbed the foreign author in order to ruin the market for the author at home.

I saw, not long ago, an author who was very unhappy, indeed. Life had been for him one long, piercing wail, he said. He had issued a book which sold well. It was not purchased so much by the upper classes, but those who wished to read the struggles of one who had suffered keenly, one who had panted for the unattainable, one whose pantlets had been admired wherever the English language was spoken, bought and eagerly perused his book.

And yet he regretted that he had ever issued it. It had been misconstrued by the authorities and used against him, and though the sales had been fair, he said that if he had his life to live over again, he would abstain from literary pursuits.

When I met him he was working in the belting department of the thrashing machine works at Stillwater, a few miles from my estates at Slipperyelburst. His name is Coleman Younger, though he allowed me to call him Cole, because he thought there should be no stiffness or formality between literary people, and so he called me "Bill," and I called him "Cole."

The book was a sort of biographical volume, dealing with the gay frolics of the Younger brothers, who were in the general bank clearance business and brokerage line for some years. They were also railroading a little under the firm name and style of Younger, James & Younger. They built up a large Western trade in the Smith & Wesson and all-around-alibi business, which culminated in an attempt to examine into the condition of the bank at Northfield, Minn., during banking hours. This was resented, and, after a long chase on the part of Minnesota's people, the Youngers were brought over to Stillwater, there to remain until they should be called away to that land reserved for the murderer, where common people who have not distinguished themselves can never enter.

But after ten years engaged in painting wagons and constructing thrashing machines at a nominal salary, and clothed in those monotonous garments so much affected by the guests of our leading penitentiaries, the Younger brothers desire to be pardoned, so that they may go into the museum and manslaughter business in Missouri.

At this inauspicious moment, when influential people in Minnesota and Missouri are straining every nerve to secure pardons for these gentlemen, some one suddenly produces a copy of Mr. Younger's great book, in which he has told, through the instrumentality of a third party, who is the ostensible author, how he used to cut up when he was with Quantrell in the disagreeable days of the war, and how the Youngers, the Jameses and the Benders used to be up most all night robbing people.

Just as the sweet young lady with the soft heart and still more mellow head, comes forth on bended knee and asks Governor Hubbard to please pardon Mr. Younger, here comes a low, coarse man with a copy of "Thirty Years in Custody, or How it Feels to be Indicted: being the Biography of and Personal Reminiscences of Coleman Younger & Brothers," in which he tells about standing fifteen prisoners up together in order to see how many he could shoot through with the Winchester rifle, intending to return the rifle to the man from whom he purchased it, if it did not prove satisfactory; also how they compelled an old lady to set fire to her house so that the boys could find their way to the melon patch, and then shooting her down because the melons were not ripe after all.

Mr. Younger says that he is very sorry now that he ever dabbled in literature at all. Other authors write what they choose, but he is called strictly to account for everything in his book. Newspapers print little anecdotes from the work, and then ask their readers how they feel about pardoning the authors. Mr. Younger says everybody knows that as a matter of fact, many other authors have written books that did not have a particle of truth in them, and still everybody is anxious to believe all that he says in his book. Why is it?

He thinks that the life of a literary man is indeed a hard one. If he desires to tell a story that will be believed, the public will not believe it, and if he desires to impress the reader with the fact that it is a joke, the aforesaid reader believes every word of it.

To combine murder and literature properly is a great gift. It requires wonderful shrewdness and versatility. Publishing and petty larceny are different. They have been successfully combined, but authorship and assassination are not easily united. After conversing with Mr. Younger, I am convinced that the man who cannot obtain a livelihood by assassination alone, should not try to piece out his income by dabbling in literature.

His Tones.

Gustavus Hall, who is somewhat known as an opera singer, is considerable of a talker also, and his conversation usually leads to his own deeds, his own voice or something about himself. One day he remarked very portentiously to a man who had been listening to him for an hour or so:

"Why, sir! I have some tones in my voice that no other baritone possesses in equal degree and quality."

"I believe you have," rejoined the talked to man, "and I can name them right here. They are G-A-B?"—Cambridge Gazette.

Not a Partisan.

"Isn't he beautiful?" said the wife of the politician, as she dandled her baby boy, who smiled and kicked every time she threw him up.

"He is," answered the proud father as he watched the play of the little feet, "but I'm afraid he will never be a good party man."

"Why not?"

"Because he's a kicker.

It is these terrible things that cast a gloom over the happiest families.

A cow belonging to a farmer in East Bradford township was found dead the other day with one of her hind legs fastened by one of her horns. The horn had penetrated through the leg just above the hoof, and so tight was it that the man who took off the hide was unable to remove it, and had to cut off the leg before he could do so. The supposition is that the cow was lying down at the time, when she was stung by some insect, and attempted to brush it off with her foot, when it caught on the horn.—Lawrence (Mass.) Republican.

A QUESTION ABOUT
Brown's Iron Bitters
ANSWERED.

The question has probably been asked thousands of times, "How can Brown's Iron Bitters cure everything?" Well, it doesn't. But it does cure any disease for which a reputable physician would prescribe IRON. Physicians recognize Iron as the best restorative agent known to the profession, and inquiry of any leading chemical firm will substantiate the assertion that there are more preparations of iron than of any other substance used in medicine. This shows conclusively that iron is acknowledged to be the most important factor in successful medical practice. It is, however, a remarkable fact, that prior to the discovery of BROWN'S IRON BITTERS no perfectly satisfactory iron combination had ever been found.

BROWN'S IRON BITTERS does not injure the teeth, cause headache, or produce constipation—all other iron medicines do. BROWN'S IRON BITTERS cures Indigestion, Biliousness, Weakness, Dyspepsia, Malaria, Chills and Fevers, Tired Feeling, General Debility, Pain in the Side, Back or Limbs, Headache and Neuralgia—for all these ailments Iron is prescribed daily.

BROWN'S IRON BITTERS, however, does not cure in a minute. Like all other thorough medicines, it acts slowly. When taken by one the first symptom of benefit is renewed energy. The muscles then become firmer, the digestion improves, the bowels are active, in women the effect is usually more rapid and marked. The eyes begin at once to brighten; the skin clears up; healthy color comes to the cheeks; nervousness disappears; functional derangements become regular, and if a nursing mother, abundant sustenance is supplied for the child. Remember Brown's Iron Bitters is the ONLY iron medicine that is not injurious. Physicians and Druggists recommend it.

AN EXTRAORDINARY OFFER.

To All Wanting Employment.

We want Live, Energetic and Capable Agents in every county in the United States and Canada, to sell a patent article of great merit, ON ITS MERITS. An article having a large sale, paying over 100 per cent profit, having no competition, and on which the agent is protected in the exclusive sale by a deed given for each and every county he may secure from us. With all these advantages to our agents and the fact that it is an article that can be sold to every household, it might not be necessary to make an "EXTRAORDINARY OFFER" to secure good agents at once, but we have concluded to make it to show, not only our confidence in the merits of our invention, but in its salability by any agent that will handle it with energy. Our agents now at work are making from $150 to $500 a month clear and this fact makes it safe for us to make our offer to all who are out of employment. Any agent that will give our business a thirty days' trial and fail to clear at least $100 in that time, ABOVE ALL EXPENSES, can return all goods unsold to us and we will refund the money paid for them. Any agent or general agent who would like ten or more counties and work them through sub-agents, for ninety days and fail to clear at least $750 ABOVE ALL EXPENSES, can return all unsold and get their money back. No other employer of agents ever dared to make such offers, nor would we if we did not know that we have agents now making more than double the amount we guaranteed; and but two sales a day would give a profit of over $50 a month, and that one of our agents took eighteen orders in one day. Our large descriptive circulars explain our offer fully, and those we wish to send to everyone out of employment who will send us three one cent stamps for postage. Send at once and secure the agency in time for the boom, and go to work on the terms named in our extraordinary offer. We would like to have the address of all the agents, sewing machine solicitors and carpenters in the country, and ask any reader of this paper who reads this offer, to send us at once their name and address of all such they know. Address at once, or you will lose the best chance ever proposed to those out of employment to make money.

A Shrewd Swindler.

A victim appeared the other afternoon at the city hall, in a vague search for redress. He related the actions of a street "fakir" who succeeded in gulling crowds and winning dollars by sheer boldness. About the middle of last week a lively appearing man stood in a buggy, beside a vapor light, in the square near the postoffice. A crowd soon collected. The stranger drew out a sachel and took from it a quantity of jewelry. With a smile, he held up several watch chains, and said, "Gentlemen, I want to sell you some jewelry. Perhaps you think these are gold, but they are not. They are a good thing to have, but they are not gold. Gentlemen, I will sell you these chains for $1 each."

While talking he drew forth a number of bills, and folding them lengthwise secured them to his vest by passing them through the buttonholes. The chains glittered brightly under the flaring light, and the man was very jolly, blunt, candid and straightforward. One or two of the chains were bought, and in one of them the stranger tied a curious knot. He still kept up his talking "You must be careful or I'll swindle you," he said, laughingly. "This is my business, and they say it is hard to beat a man at his own tricks. These chains are not gold, and I don't want you to buy them unless you really wish to do so."

More of the chains were sold, and finally the stranger asked if some one in the crowd had not received a chain with a knot in it. The chain was passed up to him. Whipping a $1 bill from a buttonhole, he passed it cleverly into the knot and tossed the money and chain back to the owner. Still continuing his peculiar remarks, at which the crowd laughed, he sold chain after chain, right and left. In some of them he tied one knot, in some two, and in others three.

Finally he held up a beautiful, glittering hunting case watch. "You fellows think you're smart," he said. "You think this is a gold watch. It isn't. This is not gold. Neither is it a watch. It is a good thing in its way, but it is no watch. I beg you not to buy it if you don't want it. I will sell this for $3." The crowd laughed uproarously, for the object in the fakir's hand was unmistakably a fine looking timepiece. He insisted, however, that the object was no watch and begged, with a comical look on his face, that all who were foolish enough to buy them would not examine them until they reached home. In half an hour he sold in this manner a large number of watches and chains. Finally he exclaimed "Oh, I believe I knotted some of the chains You needn't send them forward, gentlemen. Those with one knot are for little men, those with two for medium sized men, and those with four and five for big men. Now, gentlemen, I said those were not watches. Observe me."

He held one of the watches over his head, opened the case, and to the astonishment of all, passed his finger completely through the dial and where the works should have been. The cases were of thin metal, stamped in the proper form, and the dials were merely pasteboard, but the deception was clever, The chains were worth about 10 cents each. Lifting his hat politely, the smiling fakir said, "Good-evening, gentlemen," extinguished the light, and drove away. The fakir then went to Michigan street, near Ontario, and held forth for half an hour with great profit to himself. Then he went to the west side, near the market house, where he sold more of his jewelry to the amused people. Here he sold his watches for $5, and one of them is said to be in the pocket of a prominent west side physician. The fakir staid no more than half an hour in any place and probably left the city at once. The victim was informed that the humorous seller of jewelry could not reached by the law, as he had made no false pretenses.—Cleve'and Leader.

Why the Bishop was Uncomfortable.
Newark Call.

An amusing story, which has never been published, is related of the venerable Bishop Horatio Potter, of New York. Not long ago he visited a church in his diocese and spent a night at the house of the rector of the parish, sleeping in the guest chamber. In the morning the Bishop seemed unwell. His host said:

"Bishop, I hope you slept well."

"On the contrary," replied the prelate, who was in a testy mood, "I never passed a more wretched night."

"I am sorry. The bed was comfortable, was it not?"

"Very uncomfortable," was the short answer, given in a tone which showed how sore the Bishop felt.

An investigation was made at once and the fact discovered that the rector's wife, who was away from home, had hidden her silver tea service and jewel case underneath the mattress of the bed in the spare-room, and so given her honored Bishop a night of misery.

A Speck of War.

LONDON, Oct. 1.—Lights were burning in the Foreign Office long after midnight last night, and the papers all had leaders this morning declaring that the situation is more serious than it has been at any time since the abduction of Prince Alexander. Premier Tiza's answer to the Diet is said to have been wildly applauded by the Hungarians, as well it might have been, for bolder words from an Austrian dignatary have not been spoken since Sadowa. The declaration seems to render it impossible for Austria to back down an inch or refuse to make Herr Tiza's words good; yet it amounted to a guarantee that General Kaulbars would not be allowed to do precisely the things he placarded all Sofia with intentions to do.

Unless Russia backs down and recalls General Kaulbars, it is difficult to see how a collision is avoidable. Nobody believes that Russia will back down. It is significant that Turkey is massing troops at Adrianople as earnestly as if war had begun. She is also said to be hard at work fortifying Armenia.

Late dispatches from Vienna report an extremely excited feeling there. At Pesth the general expectation is that Russia will force matters to an issue at once. There seems to be no doubt that the Bulgarians will stand firm in defiance of Russia now that Austria is at her back, and events are likely to march now at a stirring pace.

Extensive telegraphing was going on from the Foreign Office last night. A project is on foot here to start a popular subscription for a sword of honor to be presented to Prince Alexander.

Big Dry Goods Failure.

CHICAGO, October 1.—The store of A. Gage & Co., was reopened at 10 o'clock this morning by the assignee, who, under the order of Judge Prendergast, will conduct the business for the benefit of the creditors pending a settlement of the affairs of the embarrassed firm. There was a rush of customers, and beyond the prevalence of inquiries which the sales people found it difficult to answer, business was carried on as usual The assets and liabilities have not yet been scheduled, but the former are estimated at $800,000 and the latter at over $1,000,000.

A. L. Gage will appear in Judge Prendergast's Court next Wednesday morning, when he will be expected to answer any questions which the creditors may ask. The assignee has commenced to take an inventory, but does not expect to have it completed for a week. There are no preferences in the assignment, but the parties who own stocks in the building will apply to the Courts to-day for the exemption of their goods.

This morning a law firm representing a part of the creditors made a motion before Judge Prendergast to have an expert book-keeper appointed to make an examination of Gage & Co.'s books. The Court granted the motion, saying he would appoint any expert that both parties agreed to.

Sunday in Richmond.

RICHMOND, Va., October 3.—Delegations to the Knights of Labor national assembly have been arriving steadily all day long Many strange faces may be seen on the streets. Among the latest arrivals are the delegation from district assembly 49, of New York, who came by steamer to Newport News and thence to Richmond by rail, and the Milwaukee delegation. The principal churches were well attended by the visitors. Grand Master Workman Powderly attended high mass at St. Peter's Cathedral. He was accompanied by Messrs. Mullen and Hayes, of the national executive committee.

After the services he was invited to a meeting of the conference of St. Vincent De Paul, in the Cathedral, where he was introduced to the members, who greeted him cordially. He addressed the conference briefly, thanking them for the kind reception. He alluded to the work of the society and drew a comparison between its work and that of the order over which he presided, saying that the object of both was in many respects similar; that each aimed to ameliorate the troubles of their fellow-creatures and aid and elevate mankind. Mr. Powderly has been kept busy for the greater portion of the day in receiving visitors, but to night he has declined to see anyone except Grand Secretary Turner and the members of the executive committee.

The Can Makers' union, of Baltimore, numbering several hundred, arrived this afternoon by steamer, acting as escort to the Baltimore delegation. They marched, preceded by a band of music, to Ford's hotel, where they left the delegation. All the excursionists returned to the boat and left for Baltimore. There are already between eight and nine hundred delegates here, besides a large number of non-delegates. The executive committee has not held a session yet, but will do so to-morrow morning before the national assembly is called to order. The meeting will be for the arrangement of preliminaries.

Assaulted and Robbed.

WILLIAMSPORT, October 3.—James Arbuckle, freight agent of the Philadelphia and Reading railroad at Allentown, was assaulted and robbed of three hundred dollars and a silver watch and then left for dead in a secluded place in this city about 1 o'clock this morning. The man who committed the outrage came on a late train from Milton with Arbuckle and had invited the latter to spend the night with him. After being beaten in a shocking manner, Arbuckle was dragged some distance and hidden in a pile of kindling wood. He recovered consciousness this morning and is now in the hospital with some hops of recovery. He was able to give a description of his assailant and officers are in search of him.

The Spanish Rebels.

MADRID, Oct. 3.—The two courts martial composed of seventeen generals and four colonels, commenced yesterday the trial of General Villacampa and the other officers implicated in the recent rebellion. General Villacampa's daughter met the members of the court martial at the door of the prison, and weepingly implored them to show mercy to her father. She was removed in a fainting condition. The courts condemned to death the fourteen prisoners, including Villacampa, three officers, five sergeants, three corporals and two civilians. It is believed that only seven of the convicted men will be shot.

Charlestonians go to Church.

CHARLESTON, October 3.—There have been no shocks here for the past forty-eight hours and only two or three slight tremors at Summerville. The weather has been pleasant to-day and cool enough for light overcoats and fur. Religious services were held by all the congregations. The Presbyterians held a union meeting at Westminster and the other congregations worshiped wherever practicable in church buildings. To-day about eight hundred excursionists arrived here by the Atlantic Coast Line.

Mrs. Cleveland in Buffalo.

BUFFALO, N. Y., October 3.—Mrs. Cleveland spent her first Sunday in Buffalo, since her departure for Europe a year or so ago, in a very quiet manner. She remained at the residence of her cousin, Miss Alice Folsom, all day. On Tuesday afternoon next a luncheon in her honor will be given by one of the leading society ladies of the city, after which Mrs. Cleveland and her mother will return to Washington.

The Knights' Convention.

RICHMOND, Va., October 4.—The taps ping of Master Workman T. V. Powderly' gavel at 10.15 o'clock this morning, gave the signal for the opening of the first session of the tenth annual convention of the Knights of Labor, in the armory of the First Virginia regiment, in this city. He stood alone upon a small, plain pine platform at the further end of the spacious room, and looked out upon the faces of a thousand delegates assembled from every part of the country, representatives of a million men and women.

While the sound of the master workman's gavel still re-echoed footsteps were heard approaching the entrance door. A moment later General Fitz Hugh Lee, the governor of Virginia, entered. As he walked up the central isle leading to the platform, escorted by William H. Mullen, the master workman of the Richmond district assembly, and Tom O'Reilly, of the Telegrapher's assembly, of New York city, he was greeted with enthusiastic cheers which redoubled as he stood on the platform bowing in response to the greeting. When the applause had subsided and Mr. Mullen had presented Governor Lee to Mr. Powderly, the latter stepped forward and presented him to the members, announcing that Governor Lee was to deliver to them an address of welcome and through them to those they represented throughout the entire country.

Governor Lee was then introduced and delivered a long address, welcoming the Knights of Labor to Virginia's capital. The large audience listened with close attention, and frequent applause marked their approval of the principal points made. When the governor had taken his seat on the platform, Frank J. Farrell, the colored member of the delegation from District 49, of New York, whose associates refused to take up their quarters in the hotel where he was refused admission on an equal footing, ascended the platform, and, taking his stand beside the presiding officer, introduced Mr. Powderly, who made a very able address of response.

Shot by Smugglers.

EL PASO, October 4.—Deputy Customs Inspector O'Farrall is stationed at the American end of the bridge across the Rio Grande from El Paso to Paso del Norte to guard against the smuggling of goods. Yesterday afternoon at 1 o'clock Deputy United States Marshal Manning, who was crossing the bridge on a street car, saw men fording the river half a mile below from the Mexican to the American side carrying burdens. Manning promptly informed the officials who started down the river bank on the American side. When near the ford four Mexicans sprang from the bushes, fired three shots at O'Farral and fled. One shot pierced the crown of his hat, another ball went through the lapel of his coat, uncomfortably close to his heart. The smugglers escaped. There is a very large increase of smuggling of late all along the border.

Juniata County Republicans.

Special to Altoona Tribune.

PORT ROYAL, Pa., October 4.—The republican return judges of Juniata county met in convention to-day at Mifflintown and counted the vote polled on Saturday, which resulted in selecting the following ticket: Congress, T. E. Atkinson, Mifflintown, who is the candidate for the Eighteenth district; associate judges, J. Kelly and Jacob Smittgotter, of Fermanaugh; assemblyman, Joseph Martin; representative delegate, Banks W. Kauffman. J. K. Robison was elected chairman of the county committee.

Briefs.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—There were ninety-seven discharges at the government printing office yesterday, among them seven proof readers and five pressmen. Frank Kelly, whom Rounds brought here from Chicago and gave an $1,800 clerkship, was among the dismissals. Democrats consider Benedict as the most thoroughgoing public printer the institution has had for years.

WASHINGTON, October 3.—A delegation from the colored industrial exposition now being held in this city called at the white house yesterday and tendered an invitation at some time during the coming week. Among the callers upon the President yesterday were Senator Call, Congressman Curtin and Commodore Harmony.

LANCASTER, Oct. 3.—St. Joseph Catholic church of this city, a handsome new structure, was dedicated to-day with imposing exercises by Bishop Conroy, of Albany, assisted by a number of clergy. A number of Societies from neighboring towns were present. At this afternoon's services a large class was confirmed.

LONDON, Oct. 3.—A terrible explosion occurred on Saturday at Altorfi's colliery near Wakefield, Yorkshire. Seven men have been found dead, eight having been rescued and seventeen are missing. In all probability the missing seventeen lost their lives.

NEW YORK, October 3.—Government bonds yesterday reached the highest price in their history, the 4s selling at 129; one-eighth higher was asked at the close of business. The calling in of the 3 per cents necessitates banks buying other governments, the 4s being the favorites, as they have the longest time to run.

HARTFORD, Oct. 4.—Henry Hotchkiss, musician, has for some time been in trouble with his wife, from whom he is supposed to have separated. Yesterday afternoon they met on Market street. He drew a revolver and fired two shots at her, one of which took effect in her head and the other in her back. She died in a few minutes. Hotchkiss then fired one shot into his own head, but the wound inflicted is thought to be but slight. He was taken to the hospital.

BOMBAY, October 4.—At the festival at Etawah, the local magistrate seeing that a conflict between Hindoos and Mohammedons was inevitable brought a company of British troops to the scene. The natives, infuriated at their approach, threw themselves on the soldiers' bayonets in their intense onslaught. Many of the natives were fatally wounded. Intense excitement prevails.

HARRISBURG, Oct. 4.—The survivors of the Seventh cavalry, Pa. Vol., will have a reunion in this city to morrow and Wednesday. Tuesday will be devoted to handshaking and social affairs. In the evening a camp fire will be held, and on Wednesday the business of the the reunion will be transacted. There will be a banquet also on Wednesday.

PITTSBURG, October 5.—The annual Grand Army parade to-day was participated in by 5,000 veterans. The day was beautiful and the decorations tasteful and liberal. Camp-fires, attended by 12,000 people, were held to-night in the Coliseum, Fifth Avenue Music Hall and Saulsbury hall, at which addresses were made by Commander-in-Chief Fairchild, General E S. Osborne, Helen Desmond and Colonel Thomas J. Stewart. It is estimated that 7,500 strangers are in the city.

GETTYSBURG, Pa., Oct. 5.—Two hundred visitors from Western Massachusetts, representing the 7th, 10th, and 37th regiments, arrived this evening. To-night 100 Pittsburgers, representing the 39th Pa Reg't., are expected. Monuments will be dedicated by the visitors to-morrow.

PORT ROYAL, Oct. 5.—At the Eighteenth district democratic congressional conference held to-day at Newport, George Jacobs, of Mifflintown, Congressman Atkinson's law partner, was nominated for congress. Mr. Jacobs did not seek the nomination and will not likely accept.

HUDSON, N. Y., October 5.—"Ezra H. King," an Indiana lunatic for whom officers from Wabash have been searching for some time, was taken into custody in this city to-day and held to await the arrival of the officer detailed to convey him home. His name is Frank Ezra Stevens, and he revealed his identity through a postal card sent to the Register.

Cotton Mills Closed by Employes.

PHILADELPHIA, October 5.—By direction of the aid committee of the Manufactures' association of this city all the cotton mills in Frankford, the north eastern section of the city, were closed to-day and 3,000 hands thrown out of employment. This action of the association is the enforcement of a rule of the organization which provides that when a strike cannot be settled amicably to close all the mills of the same charter in the vicinity. The employes of William P. Troth & Co., have for some time been on a strike and all efforts to bring about an agreement have failed. The strikers demanded that an objectionable superintendent be discharged along with all the hands now working, the reinstatement of all the strikers in a body and an advance in wages of nine per cent.

Over ruled Gowen's Plea.

PHILADELPHIA, October 5.—In the United States circuit court to-day Justice Bradley delivered the opinion of the court in the suit of William M. Robinson against the Reading railroad company for foreclosure under the general mortgage He over-ruled Mr. Gowen's plea as to the invalidity of the request as made by the holders of one-tenth in the amount of the general mortgage bonds and held that the complainant was entitled to a decree. A reference will be made to a master to ascertain the entire amount of the company's bonds now outstanding and counsel will prepare a decree which will be submitted to the court on Tuesday.

A Knights of Labor Victory.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., October 5.—Some time ago Hoover, Hughes & Co., contractors, of Pittsburg, who have the contract for building the Seaton Hill Seminary, near Greensburg, awarded the contract for 1,500,000 bricks to the Cambria Iron Company, who have a large brick yard at this place. The men employed by the contractors, the majority of whom are Knights of Labor, learned of this and positively refused to do a stroke of work on the Seminary building unless the contract with the Cambria Iron Company was rescinded, the reason of this action on their part being the well known hostility of the Cambria Iron Company to the Knights of Labor. It has just leaked out that Hoover, Hughes & Co., promptly cancelled their contract with the Cambria people, and as a result the Cambria brick yard is shut down for want of orders.

Shaking Hands With Mrs. Cleveland

WILKESBARRE, October 5.—MRS. Cleveland, accompanied by her mother and her cousin, Miss Emma Folsom, of Philadelphia, passed through here from Buffalo en route to Washington. They occupied the coach Minerva used only by the president of the Lehigh Valley road. At the depot they were met by over 1,000 persons, the majority being women, who were anxious to see the president's wife and many of whom shook hands with her.

Retire for Life.

BALTIMORE, Md., October 5.—Henry A. Leenton, convicted at Eliott City of stealing a horse, was to-day sentenced to fourteen years' imprisonment at hard labor. After stealing the horse he set fire to the stable and destroyed seven horses. For that offense he was tried and convicted in this city last week. The maximum penalty is ten years' imprisonment, and he will be brought to Baltimore for sentence. The last imprisonment will only begin at the close of the first.

Will File a Bill of Equity.

HARRISBURG, October 4.—Attorney General Cassiday will be in Harrisburg on Wednesday or Thursday when he will take preliminary steps against the coal pool men. A bill in equity will be filed to restrain the several corporations from entering into a combination.

The women of fiction form, perhaps, the most delightful ideal possession of the civilized races of the world. Invention, based upon imitation, has produced true and lovely images of the fairest and sweetest creatures that make the earth divine. To few men is it given to know and meet in actual life women who rise to the altitude of worth and charm of the women of the poets, and it is pre-eminently the happy task of the poet to embody for us, in suggestions of deathless loveliness, beings who answer to the highest conceptions that man can form of beauty, of tenderness, of purity and of nobleness. In the magic mirror of the poet's imagination are fixed to permanence that images of the fairest and dearest of God's feminine creatures.

"PURITANISM" is a quality that many people—even religious people—talk of as something to avoid It is a term applied to extreme care and exactness in behavior and conduct. We, however, admire just exactly the kind of conduct implied by the word "Puritanism," and the word itself is of the best possible origin. The Puritans were a people whose traits of character deserved the greatest admiration and respect. If goodness is a good thing we cannot have too much of it.

IT IS now stated—we fear not by authority—that the President intends to commence gunning for the Federal office holders who have been taking conventions by the throat while his back was turned. This would make things very lively in Democratic circles, and, if carried out, would probably neutralize the effects of the cold wave. But we hardly think that the President is prepared to carry out this policy. We have not heard that he has a new Democratic party in stock.

IT really affords a gratifying indication of progress when a Missouri mob, that had undertaken to murder a man because he was suspected of killing some one else, is finally prevailed upon, after they had the poor wretch half hung, to forego their taste for murder until it is known whether some one else did not commit the crime. This holds out the idea that Missouri is likely to get further up in the scale of civilization than Cumberland county, Maryland.

AN Ohio Judge pronounces the Dow law of that State constitutional. He, moreover, decides that the measure does not deprive the complainant (a liquor seller) of his property. It seems to us that the claim that there must be recompense for property if a prohibition law should prevail is not very sound. The property is not destroyed even if the business is stopped.

Opinion of a Leading Editor

Almost all the diseases that afflict us from infancy to old age have their origin in a disordered liver. A really good liver medicine is the most important in the whole range of pharmacy. We believe Simmons Liver Regulator to be the the best among them all. We pin our faith upon the Regulator, and if we could persuade every reader who is in ill health to buy it, we would willingly vouch for the benefit each would recieve.—ED CINCINNATI GAZETTE

The Great Frontier Parade October 12.

Wild West Indians & Sharpshooters.

ONE THOUSAND MEN AND HORSES.

FOUR BANDS OF MUSIC.

Weather permitting, the street parade of the Great Forepaugh and Wild West shows, Tuesday morning next, will be the most novel, attractive and costly show pageant ever seen upon the streets of this city.

The first section will be headed by Mentor's band, followed by a long line of palatial animal dens, containing giraffes, sea-lions, and every animal known to natural history, and of sufficient interest for public exhibition; many of them will be opened to public view. These will be followed by led by "Bolivar," Jumbo's only rival, and now the largest living elephant in captivity; then will come groups of lofty-headed and haughty stallions and hundreds of gaily caparisoned horses, mounted knights in armor, Amazonian warriors, followed by the Mikado of Japan and all his royal courtiers, including the "three little maidens just from school," all riding upon three little mules and led by the band from the town of Titipu. The second section will be composed of the unique, romantic and picturesque features. A genuine Cowboy brass band, costumed in frontier style, will precede this detachment of the parade, which will be followed by the first delegation of genuine far-west Indians ever seen in this city, all in full war paint and feathers, together with scouts, sharpshooters, lassoists, Indian ponies, elk, deer, buffaloes, &c., and then will follow the

WILD WEST SHOW

which was manufactured for the Overland Stage Company, before the completion of the Pacific railroad; six horses will be attached to it, and one of the company's old-time drivers will "handle the ribbons." All these frontier features are arranged for an effective illustration of its natural scenes, thrilling episodes and infinite variety of incident in life, love and death on the border life. This picturesque and instructive feature will be followed by realistic scenes from the ancient east, mingling with the romance and reality of the new world. Lalla Rookh's departure from Delhi, and Cleopatra, in her barge of beaten gold, surrounded with all the luxury and extravagance of her time, and attended by her beautiful maidens, will add to the splendor and novelty of this collossal and costly pageant.

—One man was killed and two seriously injured by a fall of earth at the Cambria Iron Company's blast furnaces, Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

To the Voters of the Twentieth Congressional District of Pennsylvania.

The urgent demands that industrial legislation should be had which will restore prosperity alike to our laborers and our business men, and living prices to our farmers for their products, induces me to offer myself as a candidate for Congress, where alone these issues can be settled.

The greatest duty of government is to secure high wages and consequent prosperity for the producing laborers of the country. On this depends all agricultural, manufacturing and mercantile prosperity.

To effect this purpose I am in favor of the following measures, and if elected will work and vote for their passage.

1st. To increase the tariff until we do not import anything we can make in sufficient quantities for our use.

2d. To prevent the importation of contract, pauper or criminal labor.

3d. To pay out on the overdue national debt and for needed public improvements the hundreds of millions of surplus money now in the Treasury of the United States.

4th. To save to American laborers the two hundred million of dollars now paid out each year for foreign sugar and for the ocean carrying trade, by building an American merchant marine, and by establishing the beet and corn sugar industries by the same kind of governmental assistance that has been extended to these industries in France and Germany.

5th. To do equal and exact justice to all the soldiers and sailors of the war of 1861-1865 by putting all who were honorably discharged on the pension roll at liberal rates.

6th. The free coinage of American silver, and to restore the fractional currency.

Believing that these measures will restore prosperity to business and labor, therefore I ask all who are opposed to a further reduction of the tariff and a further depression in business, to vote for me.

THEODORE P. RYNDER,
Milesburg, Centre Co., Pa.

Oct. 5th, 1886.

How it was Done.

It seems that the Congressional conferees had no intention of nominating Hon. J. K. P. Hall, of Elk county, but were duped into so doing. They expected to nominate Mr. Reed, but before doing so agreed to give each of the candidates the compliment of nine votes. When Hall's turn came the nine delegates voted for him, and to their intense surprise and chagrin the vote of Mr. Goodlander, editor of the Clearfield Republican, was added, giving him ten votes and the nomination. Of course, they had to make the best of it. They think seriously of retiring to a winter resort on top of a powder magazine, with the hope that lightning will strike the powder.

It Would be Well—

If a Y. M. C. A. building could be erected here very soon.

If the members of the Christian churches were more cordial and sociable in their relations with one another.

If the business honesty sometimes talked about were more prevalent in actual transactions.

If some of our business men who are waiting for trade to come to them would make more trade by starting a manufacturing industry in the car works buildings.

If every poor family in town had sufficient money to provide themselves with the necessaries of life during the winter.

If ministers would attach more importance to the preaching of the Gospel and less to that of some doctrine of man's invention.

Howard News.

Miss Vergie Daughenbaugh, a young lady, while helping to boil apple butter on last Thursday, had the misfortune of being burned very seriously. Her clothing was nearly all burned up, and almost the whole body burned in a crisp. She is in a very serious condition. They have the warmest sympathy of the community, and all they can do to comfort the family will be done.

Mr. Jonas Sperring and family moved to Clearfield last week, where he oversees a job of paperwood cutting.

Mr. Nathan Schenck from West Union, Iowa, is here on a visit. He is as lively as ever, and has hosts of friends here.

Mr. H. C. Holter, S. H. Pletcher, A. L. Holter, Joseph Schenck, W. T. Holter and W. N. Neff are going to Philipsburg to work for Mr. Rhule at carpentering.

ALERT.

—The Lock Haven Express remarks: "Mr. Hall was the nominee (for Congress) two years ago, but retired in favor of Governor Curtin just before the election to save the district to the Democrats." Oh, yes; he "retired." There are many who believe he did not lose anything financially by the retirement. The people expect to retire him this time in a different manner.

—In addition to Chauncey F. Black, Democratic candidate for Governor, William J. Brennan, the candidate for Secretary of internal affairs, Hon. B. F. Myers, editor of the Harrisburg Patriot, and Benjamin F. Nead, of Harrisburg, also arrived. The two candidates went to the Bush House and the other gentlemen are quartered at the Brockerhoff House.

—The houseplants and flowers are now very beautiful. The female head of the household regards them among her most precious earthly treasures, and even the male head enjoys them. What a pity, then, that some night the weather will become unexpectedly and intensely cold. Jack Frost will enter through the walls of the house and about one-half of these treasures will be touched by him and caused to wither and die. "Only a blighted blossom" will be the wail of the truly sorrowful one who has tended them so carefully. Weep not. Experience teaches that this affliction must come once a year.

—Chauncey F. Black, the Democratic candidate for Governor, arrived in town Wednesday and was met by Democrats, who conducted him to the Bush House. He was, perhaps, the most distinguished looking gentleman who arrived on the 9.32 train, but as he passed along very few people thought of him as a governor. He does not look at all like a prospective Governor. In personal appearance he is decidedly good looking, but in general make-up, Gen. Beaver will attract the most attention and admiration at any time.

Out of Debt.

The last dollar of Centre county's debt was paid on Monday last. It was to Mr. W. A. Tobias. This is an event of note, as the debt of the county, only a few years ago, was considered very large, and there did not seem to be much prospect of being relieved of it for some time to come. We congratulate the county on this favorable condition of affairs.

Patriotic Shingletown.

A small community named Shingletown and located about two miles from Boalsburg, in this county, is one of the most patriotic in the United States. When the war began there were only 26 voters living there and of these 13 went to war. Only five of them returned from the terrible conflict. Shingletown deserves to have a monument.

Death of Mr. Henry Reese.

Mr. Henry Reese, who lived in Boggs township, died on Tuesday morning at 11 o'clock. He was 64 years of age. He was quite a prominent citizen of that township and was very much respected. The funeral will occur this morning at 10 o'clock; interment in the Advent graveyard.

FOUR actresses have arrived recently in New York City and their advent has filled columns in the papers. There are circumstances connected with the coming of two of them which read strange in America. For instance, Violet Cameron travels with an English Lord as a campanion, which, considering that she is married to another man, is an outrage upon all just conception of propriety. Lily Langtry is a little better. She does not travel with a male companion, but her admirer, Freddie Gebhart, meets her when she arrives, which is also somewhat startling, considering that she leaves a husband behind. Of the other two—Miss Fortesque and Madame Janish—no such tales are told, although we know that the former has been recently the heroine in a breach of promise suit against Lord Garmoyle, in which she gained $50,000. Much as is said about the beautiful moral lessons taught by the theatre, the example and practice of these leading ladies (?) does not serve to intensify one's admiration for it. If it is elevating, why are most of the actressess so very loose and abandoned in their behavior? Will some defender of the stage reply.

The Nomination of Hall.

It seems that the Democrats of this vicinity are in the business of making mistakes this year. The nomination of J. K. P. Hall, of Elk county, is the crowning error. Some mistakes can be accounted for, but this is one that the wisest individual will fail to comprehend. To nominate one of the most insignificant men in the district to a place long filled by Ex-Gov. Curtin is little less than astonishing. Words cannot describe the indignation of Centre county Democrats.

QUEEN VICTORIA was sufficiently thoughtful and sympathetic to send a note expressive of her condolence with those who suffered by the Charleston earthquake. King Grover Cleveland may have sympathised with them, but we have heard of no such message from him, neither have we heard of that more practical attestation to his sympathy—a contribution to aid them. He thinks much more of catching fish and making places for such men as Sedgwick, than he does of helping those who are in need.

MINISTER PHELPS is having a pretty easy time of it in London, and about the only thing he has done lately was to refuse to present Mr. Allen Thorndyke Rice at court on the ground that the latter published in his magazine an article criticising Secretary Bayard. The theory that Phelps is in England to act for this Government seems to be entirely wrong—the fact being that he is there to represent the personal and political interests of Thomas F. Bayard.

It Was All Right.

A young professor in an Illinois university was engaged to be married to the daughter of a wealthy farmer living in one of the eastern counties of this State. On the day of the wedding the bridegroom was driving in a buggy through a country road in the direction of his prospective father-in-law's house. Not being familiar with the neighborhood he stopped in front of a dilapidated log cabin and inquired of a lank man who was leaning against the rail fence:

"Is this the way to Mr. Podder's?"

The lank man hitched up his trousers and said:

"Be you goin' to Podder's?"

"Yes."

"That's where the doin's is to-night. His darter's goin' to be hitched."

"Yes."

"Who she goin' to git?"

"A man named Tompkins," said the blushing bridegroom.

"Is he any good?"

"Pretty poor stick, I've been told."

"Has he got any style?"

"Not much."

"Well," said the old man, with a sigh of relief, "I'm glad he's such a poor shoat, for my gals has got an invite to the weddin', an' I heard nobody could go that couldn't eat with their forks. My gals can't eat with their forks, but I reckon I'll let 'em go. Podder's is two miles straight ahead."

A Woman's Way.

A train of thought in a woman never has to be backed up and shunted to get it going in a new direction. It jumps from a trunk line to a side switch, lands squarely on all its tracks, and goes whistling off down a country road without the slightest premonition.

They call this a charming naivete of independence.

Men call it want of the logical faculty.

However, if it is womanly, let us give it welcome.—Nym Crinkle in New York World.

—Mr. C. G. McMillen was at home on Monday, to remain until Wednesday night. He reports that last week was the most profitable the North Carolina Troubadours have experienced.

—Despite the stringency of the times, hotel business is reported excellent and Bellefonte landlords are entertaining more guests than for many years.

EDITOR'S TABLE.

We have received the Wide Awake for October and it is as cherry and bright as ever, one of the best magazines for young people issued by any publishing house in the world. The present number is filled with rich illustrations of very interesting topics. It should be in the hands of every youth. Most of the wealthier class in Centre county take it, but the poor should also give their children the benefit of its elevating and educating influences; it will make your children better men and women. Terms, $3.00 per year. Address, D. Lothrope & Co., publishers, Boston, Mass.

The Ladies' Home Journal and Practical Housekeeper, a national illustrated family journal, is a constant visitor. The October number is now before us. Our wife thinks it one of the best things out, and that is a first class recommendation. The price, too, is cheap. Just think of it, a beautiful monthly magazine for only 50 cents per year! Address, The Curtis Publishing Co., 441 Chestnut St., Philadelphia, Pa.

The New South, published at Birmingham, Ala., is an illustrated monthly journal, devoted to Southern progress, has been a regular visitor of late. W. H. Worthington is the editor. It is beautifully printed and filled with interesting reading on the industries and institutions of the South, and of Birmingham, Alabama, in particular. We see by it that many from our State have located there, and a cordial invitation is extended to more to come. Address, The New South, Birmingham, Ala. Price, $1.00 per year; single copy, 10 cents.

Ringworm Humor and Salt-Rheum.

RAYNHAM, MASS., Aug. 12, 1878.

C. I. HOOD & Co.: Gentlemen— * * * * I have had ringworm humor and salt-rheum so badly that my body was covered with raw sores; so, also, my head and face. I have had any number of doctors in the last seven years, and none of them could cure me. One day my mother was in the city of Taunton, and found one of your cook books, and in reading it I found many people testifying to cures from the use of your Sarsaparilla and Olive Ointment. I felt forced to try it, although I had seen many things advertised that never did me any good. I have now taken two small bottles and one large one of Sarsaparilla, and used three boxes of Ointment. I now call myself cured. Nothing can be seen of the humor but the dim outlines of the sores. I shall take two more bottles, and then the cure will be complete.

I am gratefully yours,
EDGAR F. WHITMAN.

Biliousness, Sick Headache.

PITTSFIELD, MASS.

MESSRS. C. I. HOOD & Co.: Gents—Please send me by express two bottles HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA and a few Cook Books for distribution. Your preparation has worked wonders in the case of my wife, who has been troubled with sick headache and biliousness for years. She only took one-half teaspoonful at a dose, and has not been so well for five years as now. She found that within a week after taking it she felt very much better, and is now entirely free from those severe headaches. She has not taken any of any account since last spring, and what little she had is lent to do some others some good, and we must have it in the house.

Yours truly,
HOMER B. NASH.

HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA

Is sold by all druggists. Price $1, or six large bottles for $5. Prepared only by C. I. HOOD & CO., Apothecaries, Lowell, Mass.

Laid to Rest.

HARRISBURG, Pa, September 29.—The remains of the late Bisnop Shannahan were consigned to the tomb to-day with ceremonies of the most solemn nature, rendered all the more imposing because of the distinguished participants who came to do the dead prelate honor and join the universal regret over his death. The attendance was larger than at any funeral ever held in Harrisburg.

All night long the dead prelate lay in state in the cathedral, guarded by the young men of the church, clad in his purple vestments, with the white mitre on his head, his gloved hands folded on his breast.

At 9:40 o'clock the visiting delegations and school children were admitted and viewed the remains, then passing out the rear doors.

At 10 o'clock the side doors were opened and preceeded by Father McBride the relatives of the dead bishop, fifteen in number, walked to the platform and took their last look. They were followed by the visiting priests, who were assigned seats at either side of the platform by the master of ceremonies, Father McCallum. They numbered 150, and were clad in the black cassock and white embroidered surplice, with the beretta on their heads. Among them were Bishop Phelan, of Pittsburg; Bishop O'Hara, of Scranton; Rev. J. C. Farren, of Tyrone; Rev. L. P. Kumerant, of Philipsburg; Rev. McArdle, of Bellefonte; Rev. S. S. Sheridan, of Clearfield.

Among those in the church were the following: Governor Pattison, Hon. Simon Cameron, Mayor Wilson and wife, Dr. Pitcairn, the dead bishop's physician; Judge Simonton and wife, Auditor General Niles, Rev. Albert H. Studebaker, Lyman D. Gilbert, John. H. Weiss, J. O. Bomberger. Rev. George S. Chambers and wife, Hamilton Alricks, O. E. McClellan and wife, Judge McPherson, L. S. Bent, J. M. Westling, Rev. M. M. Fcose, Daniel Eppley.

At 10.20, when every seat in the church was filled, the services began with chanting the office of the dead, in which all the priests participated. During the chant Archbishop Ryan entered and sat in the sanctuary within the altar rail. Bishop Conroy, of Albany, officiated during the chanting of the office for the dead, assisted by Archbishop Ryan and Dr. Lauchlin, of Philadelphia.

A select choir of Philadelphia priests occupied the space in front of the grand organ in the gallery. Previous to the beginning of the mass they chanted "Casciolani's Mass," a beautiful composition, magnificently rendered by the priestly choir. In the course of the mass the voices of Fathers O'Keefe, Egan and Alexander Gallagher, of Philadelphia, were heard in a superb trio, "Hostias et Precas," as an offertory.

At 11 o'clock, at the conclusion of the chanting of the office for the dead, Bishop Ryan, accompanied by his attendants, retired to the sacristy, where he was robed as the celebrant of the pontifical requiem mass. On his ruturn he was clad in a black velvet robe trimmed with silver bullion, and wore the white beretta. The mass opened with the prayer at the foot of the altar. Then followed the "Kyrie Eleison," and the epistle, with the "Deus Qaeres." The choir chanted the Nicene Creed as the closing of the first part of the mass. The offertory was then read by the Archbishop, a most solemn part of the ceremony. Then began the canon of the mass, previous to which every priest was supplied with a candle, which were lighted at the same time as those on the altar. The choir sang the "Hosanna in Excelsis," followed by the ceremony of the elevation of the host by the celebrant, assisted by Rev. Thomas McGovern, of Danville, as deacon, Rev. Joseph Koch, of Shamokin, as sub-deacon, and Father McCallan, of Baltimore, as master of ceremonies. The second part of the mass closed with the communion, and it was 12 o'clock when the entire mass had ended and Archbishop Ryan retired.

The address of Bishop O'Hara was a touching tribute to his dead brother and in keeping with the sorrow of the occasion.

Getting Ready for Stormy Weather.

WASHINGTON, September 30.—The signal office issued the following special weather bulletin at 10 a. m.: A severe storm is now central north of Lake Huron, moving rapidly eastward with sudden and great barometric changes which will cause high southwest winds in its eastern quadrants, and northwest winds, with decidedly lower temperature, in its western quadrants. A cold wave is moving southward in its rear, overspreading Minnesota and East Dakota, and will probably be felt in Wisconsin, Illinois, Nebraska, Iowa and Northern Kansas and Missouri by to-night. The temperature will drop ten to fifteen degrees within the next twenty-four hours.

A Loop Hole for Wiggins.

CITY OF MEXICO, September 29.—Reports from all over the republic show that everywhere heavy rains have fallen doing great good in forwarding crops. In this city the rains have flooded the streets in many places necessitating the use of fire engines to pump out stores. The predicted earthquake did not take place, but the volcano of Colima is again in a state of eruption. A huge white cloud overhangs the summit causing great terror among the inhabitants of the neighboring village. This is the third time within a year that this volcano has become active. The eruption is plainly visible from the City of Colima and unusual meteorlogical disturbances have been noted in that city.

All Quiet at Charleston.

CHARLESTON, S. C., September 29.—Up to 7 o'clock this evening there had been no recurrence of earthquake shocks and the city had quieted down. Wiggins' predictions have proved to be utterly wide of the mark. The community feels greatly relieved that there have been no shocks to-day, and expect that within another week if there be no more shocks the city will have resumed its normal condition. The work of rebuilding and repairing has been going on all day without interruption and there is a growing feeling of confidence.

Geronimo's Surrender

WASHINGTON, September 30.—General Miles' annual report was received at the War Department to-day. In it is included his report of the pursuit and capture of Geronimo and his band.

Powder Explosion.

BARTOW-ON THE SOUND, N. Y., September 30.—A terrible explosion occurred at the Ditmar powder works, Bay Chester, on the Harlem river branch of the New York and New Haven railroad, about 10 o'clock this morning, resulting in the instantaneous death of four men employed in the factory. The explosion occurred in the packing house, a one story frame building twenty by thirty feet, in the center of the grounds, and about two hundred yards from the main factory, a large building near the water, where the bulk of the giant powder and nitroglycerine used in the new Aqueduct works is manufactured. The men were hard at work in putting up and packing cartridges when suddenly the explosion occurred, shattering the building to splinters and blowing the four men to fragments. The exploding powder, of which there was a large quantity, shot up into the air as high as fifty feet and splinters of the building were blown to a distance of over a mile.

The names of the men killed are as follows: Ernest Dralen, John Rusch, Max Shafbolt, Mr. Reinhart. Nothing was left of them except the fragments of their bodies. Their hands, legs, feet, arms, pieces of skull, backbones and charred bits of flesh were scattered in every direction from five hundred to six hundred feet from the packing house.

Max Cruger, foreman at the works, says the explosion was caused by two men shooting into the building. He was in the packing house at the time, and going out found two men who said they were shooting squirrels. He says he threatened them with arrest, and they then became impudent. As the explosion occured the men were seen hurrying away.

Robbers in a Cemetery.

COHOES, N. Y., September 30.—Superintendent Wheeler, of St. Agnes' cemetery, on the outskirts of town, lives in a house in the cemetery. Last night about 9 o'clock Mr. Wheeler was in bed sleeping, but Mrs. Wheeler was about the house. There was a rap at the door which was opened by Mrs. Wheeler. Four men immediately pounced upon her and carried her through the cemetery. Although she screamed with all her might her husband did not hear her. When the end of the cemetery was reached the men tied her to a fence. They then demanded that she tell where the $100 was hidden which her husband had received from the pastor of St. Agnes church, but she refused to tell. They threatened to hang her, but she firmly refused to give the information. The men then left her and went to the house, where they searched thoroughly, but did not find the money, and the men left. The woman's screams finally attracted the attention of neighboring farmers. They found her tied to the fence and insensible. Mrs. Wheeler was carried home and her husband awakened.

Cleveland Was Not Present.

BALTIMORE, September 30.—The funeral of Joseph Neal, the venerable uncle of President Cleveland, who died on Monday night last, took place to-day. Rev. A. K. Reily, of Caroline Street Methodist Episcopal church, conducted the services at Mr. Neal's late residence. President Cleveland's absence was commented upon. The interment was made at Mount Olivet cemetery, in the old family burying lot wherein President Cleveland's grandparents are buried.

Briefs.

PHILADELPHIA, September 30.—The democrats of the Third district to-day renominated Hon. Samuel J. Randal for congress. There was no opposition.

WILKESBARRE, September 30.—Ex-Mayor Frank A. Beamish, of Scranton, leader of the democratic party of Lackawanna county, who was thrown from a buggy a few days ago, is dying. His physician this evening said that he could live until morning.

CHARLESTON, S. C., September 30.—The day passed quietly, nothing happening to disturb the people's returning confidence in the stability of things in general. A slight tremor occurred at 5 p. m. It is said to have been felt by some persons but not generally throughout the city. The weather was slightly cool this morning, but is much warmer to-night.

GREENSBURG, Pa., September 30.—David Miller, aged 18 years, a son of D. J. Miller, of this place, while attempting to jump on a moving coke train this morning, lost his hold and fell to the track, receiving injuries from which he died a few minutes after. This is the second accident of the same nature within three days, the other victim being George Gordon, 16 years old, who tried the same dangerous feat with the result of having his leg so badly mashed that amputation was necessary, from the effects of which he died this morning.

SAN FRANCISCO, September 30.—Advices received from Japan state that the cholera is still raging, the proportion of deaths to cases being very heavy. Between August 28 and September 5, inclusive, nine days, 13,348 new cases were reported. In Tokio alone there were during the nine days 8,472 deaths. Over 63 per cent. of those attacked died. An examination of wells at Tokio was made and 740 out of 1,177 were condemned as unfit for drinking purposes.

WASHINGTON, September 30.—Mrs. Cleveland and Mrs. Folsom have gone to Buffalo for a visit of about ten days.

JACKSON, Mich., September 30.—Will Sargent, of this city, was until recently what is called a "base ball crank." He attended every game played in the county, and frequently visited Detroit to see the league contests. His interest in the game grew until it became a mania, and yesterday he was taken to the Kalamazoo asylum as insane. Since his removal he has apparently forgotten base ball, and now worries over the belief that he has three wives—one in Kalamazoo, one in the South and one in Jackson.

NEW YORK, September 30.—The Sun's Saratoga special says that the undertakers who embalmed General Grant's body have been unable to collect their bill of $500 from the General's relatives, and have sued W. J. Arkell for the amount, he being the one who selected them for the work. Mr. Arkell was seen in this city last night. He refused to discuss the dispatch, saying it was a private matter. The Sun says that if the undertakers will send the bill to that office the editor will remit them the amount named.

TRENTON, N. J., September 29.—A collision of a freight and a passenger train occurred to-night on the New York division of the Pennsylvania railroad, near Schenk's Station. One of the cars of the passenger train was wrecked, but fortunately none of its occupants were injured. Travel was delayed for over an hour.

HARTFORD, Conn., October 1.—The receiver of the Hartford Silk Company, at the stockholders' meeting yesterday, reported liabilities $598,000 and nominal assets $340,000, but if the property were thrown on the market its selling value will be many thousands under that figure. The report was referred to a committee, who will report October 11. The committee will decide whether it will be best to have a sale for the benefit of the creditors, or endeavor to raise fresh capital and continue the business. Receiver Willard says that no negotiations are in progress for the purchase of the property.

DETROIT, Mich., October 1.—At the opening session yesterday of the General Conference of German Baptists of the United States, Rev. E. Deckman, of Pittsburg, was elected Moderator, and Rev. W. C. Rabe, of Buffalo, and Rev. R. Hoefler, of Morrisania, N. Y., as Secretaries. Routine business was transacted, including the hearing of the report of the Publication Committee. The Conference will last for four or five days.

OTTAWA, Oct. 1.—It is probable that fresh difficulties will arise between Canada and the United States over the Alaska boundary.

CHICAGO, October 1.—The hearing of a motion for a new trial in the case of the seven condemned anarchists under sentence of death for their participating in the Haymarket fight, was commenced before Judge Grav in the Criminal Court this morning. The prisoners were in court. They all showed the effects of their imprisonment. Spies, Schwab and Fisher in particular had very white faces.

CINCINNATI, October 1.—In the Latonia Jockey Club races to-day the first race was won by Sir Heinyar; second race by Ligan; third race by High Flight; fourth race by Grisette.

AKRON, O., October 1.—Bradford W. Skinner, a wealthy farmer of Tallmadge township, was awakened last night by hearing a burglar in the next room. He picked up a rusty old shotgun and a desperate struggle ensued, in which Mr. Skinner broke the gun over the head of the burglar. The latter then opened fire on the farmer, who was fatally injured. The burglar escaped.

PHILADELPHIA, October 1.—The second international cricket match between picked men, of Philadelphia, and "Gentlemen of England" was begun to-day. The Philadelphians scored 128 runs in the first inning and the Englishmen had been 97 with only 3 wickets down, when the play was suspended for the day.

HARRISONBURG, Va., October 1.—Mrs. Christopher Yeakle was instantly killed here to-day, by jumping from a vehicle. The team, which her husband was driving, started to run away, and, becoming frightened, Mrs. Yeakle jumped out. Her head struck the pike, crushing her skull.

Charleston Shaken Again Yesterday.

CHARLESTON, October 1.—The hopes that our disturbances were over are again frustrated. Yesterday a number of people reported that they felt almost continuous tremors, but these were ascribed to passing street cars. At 1.15 this morning, however, came another well defined and distinct shock, accompanied by the horrible subterranean thunder with which these people are so familiar, but which no familiarity will rob of its terrors. The disturbance was not severe enough to arouse people and rush them out in the street, but it was very distinct and was felt all over the city.

Fire at Harrisburg.

HARRISBURG, October 1.—Fire this afternoon destroyed the coal sheds and elevator of W. H. Eby, in South Harrisburg. Loss, $3,000. Sparks from the burning sheds set fire to and almost destroyed a block of dwelling houses two squares distant. Four families were compelled to hurriedly move out their effects. A high wind prevailed, and at one time there were fears of a great conflagration.

Divorce and Marriage.

My marriage was a very romantic one, said a Chicago gentleman at the Palace Hotel, San Francisco, who is on his bridal tour.

The lady's former husband was an intimate friend of mine. He is a good fellow, but he didn't use her well.

Although a gentleman in most respects, he was so unfortunate as to have the drinking habit, and occasionally while in liquor he raised the deuce in the domestic circle.

Both he and the lady were accustomed to come to me for advice after these affairs.

"Get a divorce," says I at last.

"Agreed," says they, and shook hands on it.

Then they separated, pending the result of the legal proceedings.

I visited the lady in her retirement several times.

"Frank," said the husband to me, "don't you think you had better not call on Lizzie while this divorce business is in progress?"

"Why, Bob," says I, "what the mischief have you to do with the matter?"

"I don't like it," says he.

"But," says I, "as she's getting a divorce from you, and you are consenting, what difference can it make to you who calls on her?"

"Frank," says he, looking me straight in the eye, "do you mean to marry Lizzie?"

"Well, Bob," says I, "the idea never occurred to me before, but now that you suggest it, I don't know but what I will. Do you think she'll be likely to favor the idea herself?"

I'm blessed, continued the Chicago man, if the fellow didn't begin to fight the divorce from that minute.

We downed him, of course, but he's still cool, and even refused to attend the wedding.

However, when we get home my wife will manage to smooth him down. She knows his ways, you understand.

There's nothing so painful to me as a break in an old friendship, and we both really like Bob very well, in spite of his faults.

Consumption Cured.

An old physician, retired from practice, having had placed in his hands by an East India missionary the formula of a simple vegetation remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of Consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthma and all Throat and Lung Affections, also a positive and radical cure for Nervous Debility and all Nervous Complaints, after testing its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, has felt it his duty to make it known to his suffering fellows. Actuated by this motive and a desire to relieve human sufferings, I will send free of charge, to all who desires it, this reciept, in German, French or English, with full direction for preparing and using. ADDITIONAL LOCAL NEWS.

—October is here.

—Charley, is the ham done?

—Oysters are palatable during this cold weather.

—Steam heat radiates through the dwellings to-day.

—Jared Harper is building a new stable back of his property.

—Mrs. Daniel Reed, an old lady living at Aaronsburg, had a severe fall the other day.

—The men who put new shingle roofs on Lawrence Brown's coal sheds understand the art of working fast.

—Mrs. Harry Hatfield, sister of Miss Etta Mattern, of the Telephone Exchange, arrived Saturday and will visit her sister and other friends in this place.

—While Centre Hall people suppose that they are living on top of a big cave, residents of Brush Valley are dreaming that vast deposits of coal are lying beneath them and propose to investigate.

—Cal. Green has moved his barber shop up stairs into the room so long used as a millinery store. Cal. now has a well lighted and very cheerful room, and this change is the best possible evidence of his success. We like to see this enterprise.

—Mr. Jonathan Hess, of this county, went with his daughter to Philadelphia some time ago—the latter to submit to an operation for tumor. The operation has been performed, with good results. A letter from them informs her friends that she is improving rapidly.

—We are authorized to state, that, if satisfactory to the other counties interested, the Republican Congressional and Senatorial Conferees of this District will meet at Bellefonte, on Wednesday, 13th of October. The Republican newspapers of other counties will please take notice.

—On Tuesday, the 28th of September, a sad accident occurred at Lemont. Mrs. Stone stepped across the street to a neighbor's house leaving a one-year-old child in the house where there was also a tub of wash water. The child fell in the water and before help arrived was drowned.

—Rev. J. O. Davis, the new rector of the Episcopal church, arrived with his family from New York City on Friday evening. His family consists of his wife and three children, Clarence, Helen and an infant. They are now located at the Bush House, but expect to occupy the rectory quite soon.

—The wedding on Wednesday evening, Sept. 22, of Mr. Nat Kemp and Miss Lucy McClellan, in the Episcopal church of Philipsburg, was rendered especially brilliant by the fact that Messrs. J. D. Douglass and H. C. Williams, the intellectual and mechanical geniuses of the Ledger, officiated as ushers.

—Mr. Antoine Cruise, an employe of the glass works, is at home again after several months absence during which he has traveled over a large part of the United States. He spent most of his time at the summer resorts and also visited various parts of New York State and tarried a few days in Chicago.

—On Monday evening, September 27, the Bellefonte Encampment, No. 72, I. O. O. F., installed officers for the ensuing year, as follows: High Priest, Adam Hazel; Chief Patriarch, C. H. Weaver; Senior Warden, Uriah Stover; Junior Warden, D. I. Parsons; Inside Sentinel, Bart. Galbraith; Treasurer, Isaac Miller; Scribe, William Miller.

—A very large picnic was held in Houtzdale on Thursday by the Knights of Labor. More than 2,000 persons were present. T. P. Rynder, chairman of the Greenback party, made the opening and closing addresses and there were several other speakers. The Knights expressed themselves in favor of T. P. Rynder as their candidate for Congress in this district.

—On Thursday afternoon Mr. Frank Bible purchased the phaeton and sleigh offered at public sale by Mr. A. S. Valentine. Mr. Bible quite recently came into possession of a horse, so he is well equipped to be transported to and from his home on Curtin street in comfortable style. We hope, however, that it won't be long until he is strong enough to do without any of them.

—Mr. A. S. Valentine and family, whose household furniture was disposed of Thursday at public sale, expect to go from here to Atlantic City to live for a while. We understand and we really hope that they do not leave Bellefonte permanently, as Bellefonte cannot afford to lose such excellent people. After spending a few weeks or months with friends in othes cities, it is our hope that they will return to Bellefonte.

—Sunday, September 26, at Port Matilda, the Presbyterian and Methodist Sunday-schools had a union session because of the presence of the Presbyterian Sunday-school choir of Tyrone, and in order that all the people of that bright and hospitable little village might get the benefit of the good music which friend Canan's singers so well know how to make. The choir spent the entire day with the good people of the Port and returned home in the evening well pleased with their trip and full of praise for the kind treatment which they had received.—Tyrone Herald.

THE CONVENTION ENDED.

Two More Sessions of the W. H. and F. M. Society's Meeting—A Great Success.

Some of the flowers around the pulpit in the Lutheran church Wednesday afternoon had begun to fade, but the fair delegates were fresher and brighter than ever, and their countenances were flushed with success and triumph. The attendance of people from the town was larger than at any previous session.

After an inspiring praise service conducted by Miss S. Ohnmacht and Scripture reading by Mrs. Rev. Leisher, of McAllisterville, Pa., the delegates from the churches, the W. C. T. U., the Y. W. C. T. U. and the Loring Band were received. Mrs. Wilson and Miss Marion Milliken represented the Presbyterian church and Mrs. Zeller and Miss Emily Natt the Episcopal church. Miss Sarah Rankin represented the Loring band.

Mrs. Emmons, the temperance worker, made an able and entertaining address. A paper on "Missions and Temperance" prepared by Mrs. Rev. Lenhart, of Rebersburg, was read by that lady's daughter. Mrs Dr. Dum, of Mackeyville, read a paper on "Medical Missionaries," and Mrs. Rev. Gladhill read a paper on the "Education of the Daughters of the Church for Mission Work."

The question box furnished excellent entertainment, sixteen questions, some of them of a searching and pertinent character, being answered in a very apt manner, especially the one given to Rev. Chas Steck, regarding the teaching and instruction in Prohibition given in the Lutheran church

WEDNESDAY EVENING SESSION.

There was a very large attendance at the farewell session of the convention.

The choir opened the services about 7.30 o'clock by rendering, "Saviour, breathe an evening blessing." The Scripture reading was by Rev. J. A. Clutz and prayer by Rev. J. F. Gladhill. Hymn No. 2, "I love thy Zion, Lord," was also rendered.

An address, which was listened to with rapt attention, was delivered by Rev. J. C. Zimmerman, Secretary of Church Extension.

A solo, "Nearer, my God, to Thee," was beautifully sung by Mrs. Rev. Faber, of Salona.

After an address by Rev. P. A. Heilman, of Denver, Col., the following resolutions were adopted:

Resolved 1, That we sincerely regret the apportionment of our Synod has not been met; would heartily recommend the organization of W. H. and F. M. societies in the charges that do not contribute their quota, as the surest means of raising the standard of benevolence.

Resolved 2, That we would urge pastors, Sunday-school superintendents and officers of our societies, as a means of instilling good principles and the beauty of a useful Christian life, that they purchase the memorial tract (published a year ago) for general distribution.

Resolved 3, That we express gratitude to the Great Head of the Church for the prosperity of the missions under the care of the W. H. and F. M Society, and that we have been enabled to undertake the work at San Francisco and Los Angeles.

Resolved 4, That our societies, at the next monthly meeting, make the Los Angeles mission a special subject of prayer, and that we remember Rev. C. W. Heisler and his family at the throne of grace.

Resolved 5, That we commend the hospital in India to the prayers and liberality of our people; and that we acknowledge God's goodness in the recovery of Brother Day.

Resolved 6, That we recognize the spirit of progress in the new form and dress of our beloved missionary journal; and, being one of the most effective means of disseminating missionary intelligence, it should be in every family of our Synod.

Resolved 7, That we tender our thanks to Synod for publishing our minutes last year, and we hereby request the same favor for this year.

Resolved 8, That our President, Miss Puella E. Dornblaser be requested to continue her visitation and organization of Societies for the coming year.

Resolved 9, That we endorse the aims of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union and bid a God-speed to temperance reform, and recommend this cause to the women of our church and communities.

Resolved 10. That we tender our heartfelt thanks to the people of this church and community for their generous and hospitable entertainment; and, to the pastors, cordial help and goodwill; and, to the ministers for their words of counsel and encouragement; and, to the press, for its courteous recognition of our work; and to the ladies, for their tasteful decoration of the church; and, to the organist, Miss Ohnmacht, to the choir, to Miss Brett, and to Mrs. Faber, for the sweet music they have rendered for the enjoyment and edification of this convention.

MRS. J. T. GLADHILL,
MISS MARY E. OLEWINE,
MISS EMMA GUTELIUS
MISS KENNIE CONTNER,
MISS M. KATIE FURST,
MISS JENNIE BRIGHT,
MISS ANNIE FRANK,
Committee.

Rev. J Clutz tendered the thanks of the convention to the good people of Bellefonte. The singing of the hymn "When shall we meet again," was followed by the closing prayer and benediction by Rev. S. E. Furst.

Miss Cora Holahan, the corresponding secretary, informs us that the present total membership of the Society is 576 and the annual contributions $886.34.

—Everybody was glad to meet and take by the hand Rev. S. E. Furst, of New Berlin, Pa. Mr. Furst is now located at New Berlin, over a pleasant charge, which we are sure reaps the benefits of his able and experienced pastoral care.

THE DEATH ANGEL.

Two Citizens of Centre County Pass Away Thursday Night.

During the past six months two citizens of this county have been approaching death's door. Gradually the insidious advances of disease have baffled the resources of medicine and the skill of physicians. At length their hold on life was given up and they entered

"The country, from whose bourn
No traveler returns."

The first is that of

who died at 7 o'clock Thursday evening at his home on Allegheny street in this borough. The deceased was born at Centre Line, in this county, on the 26th of April, 1823. He came to Bellefonte when he was thirteen years of age and has resided here ever since. During the past thirty years he has been a member of the Methodist church. His wife and four children—one daughter and three sons—survive him. There were nine children in all, but five passed through the gate of death ahead of him.

Mr. McClellan was well and widely known. By trade he was a tailor, which business he pursued for many years. As a citizen he was eminently worthy and as a Christian he honored his profession. In both of these respects he was worthy of imitation.

The funeral services occurred on Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

At 11.30 o'clock Thursday night the death of occurred at his home in Philipsburg.

EX-SHERIFF L. W. MUNSON

The deceased was born in Thompkins county, New York State. He was 64 years of age in April of this year. During the past 39 years he has made his home in the vicinity of Philipsburg. He was a Democrat in politics and filled the office of Sheriff during the years 1876, '77 and '78. Nine children survive him, all of whom live in this vicinity, except one. Mr. L. T. Munson, manager for the Bellefonte Glass Company, who lives in this place, is a son of deceased. Mr. Munson was a warm personal friend of Mr. Wm. McClellan, who died only a few hours earlier. He was a good citizen and his loss will be sincerely mourned.

The funeral services were held at 3 o'clock next Sunday afternoon.

Unionville Items.

The mountain slopes are exchanging their Summer green for an Autumnal garb of many hues. The corn and buckwheat are cut off and the small crop of fall and winter fruit is being gathered. The grass and grain are looking green and vigorous under the influence of the late copious showers.

Our large county commissioner, in accordance with his personal capacity, is extending his worldly possessions in the purchase of the A. F. Leathers' store room in this place. The use he will make of it we have not ascertained.

S. B. Bathurst has purchased from A. J. Griest a building on the corner of Union and Chestnut streets for a tin shop.

N. J. Hurley is having his newly purchased home painted, ornamented and refurnished so he will have some comfort in his declining years.

We are pleased to learn that Barney Shipley, who has been quite poorly for some time, is able to be out again.

A. N. Russell, our ex-postmaster, was taken suddenly ill a few days ago, but is about again. His daughter, Mrs. Henchy, is here visiting her parents.

It looks as though our citizens have made up their minds to keep warm the coming winter, for eight or ten car loads of hard coal have been brought here within the last week, in addition to some soft coal.

Politics is dull. Perhaps some of the lights of Bellefonte could come up before the election and give us a lesson on the issues of the campaign. J.

Howard Happenings.

HOWARD, September 28.

The Howard Cornet Band was at Altoona on the occasion of the fire companies' reunion. They are improving rapidly under the instructions of their new teacher.

Col. D. S. Dunham came home last week from a Summer trip through Sullivan and several other counties of this State. He was also at Saratoga Springs and Niagara Falls and looks quite well.

We were misinformed in regard to the Kenada school being given to Wilbur Bickle. The school is not given to any one yet.

Sheriff Walker was down here and made war on the fish baskets in Bald Eagle creek and we have no doubt made a good haul on the county treasury, too. Now, we are law-abiding citizens down here as long as possible.* But in times like these, when only half the people have work, you cannot expect them to be idle and starve. Give these people work and they will hardly think of having baskets in the stream.

Black bass seem quite plenty in Bald Eagle, and some nice strings are brought to town almost daily. ALERT.

[*Times are terribly hard, that is certain, but please do not urge that fact as an excuse for any violation of law.—Ed.]

—It is about as difficult for the Democrats to nominate a congressman or senator as it is for Wiggins to correctly predict an earthquake.

What Will Become of Wiggins.

The New York Sun is responsible for the following in reference to Prophet Wiggins: "As a result of the most careful observation of the aspect of the fixed stars during the past two months, as effected by the remarkable changes now going on in the great nebula in G Cassiopeia, I am able to state with absolute certainty that by far the most awful disaster that has ever befallen the globe since its creation will occur on the 3d of October at 9:42 in the evening. The agent will be a meteoric stone—a meteoric world, indeed, since its mass will be one-eighth as great as our own sphere. It will first come in sight about half way between the constellation of the Great Bear and the north star, and will make the circle of the southern skies and then sweep northward with immeasurable rapidity, turning the night of this whole continent into a red glare of the most blinding intensity. As it approaches Canada it will make a majestic downward swoop in the direction of Ottawa, affording a spectacle resembling a million inverted rainbows woven together, and will take the prophet Wiggins right in the seat of his inspiration and will lift him straight up into the back yard of the planet Mars, and leave him permanently there in an inconceivably mashed and unpleasant condition. This can be depended on."

That Social Event at Beech Creek.

The entertainment given in the Skating Rink at Beech Creek by the ladies of the Y. W. C. T. U. of that place has attracted so much attention that we take pleasure in giving it more extended notice, and it would be well for similar organizations in other places to imitate this effort as a means of raising funds.

Of course, Beech Creek, Eagleville and the surrounding country are favored with an unusual number of talented and charming young ladies and they excel in all such undertakings.

In this instance the exercises consisted of an interesting drama, and a fine programme of a literary and musical character. Among the young ladies who assisted with special ability were the three Misses Clark, Miss Scantling, Miss Carrie Quigley, Miss DeHass and Miss Maggie Teats. The last mentioned young lady is from Unionville. She is quite young, but displayed unusual powers of expression and personation in her dialectic recitations, introducing the brogue in a manner so natural and correct as to be quite inimitable and mirth-provoking. Messrs. Brady, Crotzer and Ed. Clark also assisted.

As mentioned in another place, the proceeds were $25, and the entertainment was voted one of the most delightful of the season.

—There is one thing which should be attended to before election day. It has nothing to do with the election, but that is going to be such a cold day with some of the Democrats that serious consequences will ensue unless the matter we refer to is remedied soon. As we pass along Allegheny and other streets we notice many little rivulets of water dancing merrily along. These do not indicate springs, but rather convince us that there are numerous leaks in the water pipes around town, causing a great waste of water, and rendering them liable to freeze up with the first touch of winter weather. They should be repaired at once if not sooner. There are two leaks on Allegheny street, and there are some in the other parts of the town.

—H. G. Fisher, of Huntingdon, says the Monitor, has made an extensive purchase of coal lands on the north side of Mahoning creek in Jefferson county, this State. Capitalists in New York and Philadelphia are interested in the enterprise, and it is intended to make Punxsutawney the centre of a vast coke industry. They will begin operations as soon as they can get the works opened and a road built from Mehaffey, the present terminus of the Bells Gap railroad, to Punxsutawney, a distance of nineteen miles. The land already sold aggregates 1,624 acres, for which $97,275 was paid.

—The ladies who were present at the Lutheran missionary convention speak in the highest praise of the manner they were received and entertained here. They found everything prepared for them. Rev. J. A. Clutz, of Baltimore, who is constantly attending such conventions, told the ladies that this was the best convention of the kind he had attended. This made the ladies feel very glad. Then the ladies desire us to express their thanks to Mr. H. Y. Stitzer, who supplied stationery, pens, ink, etc., in large quantity.

—Our young friend, Mr. Hardman P. Harris, is enjoying his visit to Canton, Ohio, vastly. The county fair is in progress now in that place and Hard, writes that it as immense as the average State fair. We suppose, also, that he is interested in other sorts of "fairs" than those which imply only vegetables, fruit and horse races, and Canton contains its usual quota of fairs of all sorts.

—A little son of Mr. Robert Sailor, of Coleville, died on Friday. The funeral occurred on Saturday morning. They met at the house at 10 o'clock a. m., and after services the funeral proceeded to Curtin's Works, where the interment will be.

Politics at Stormstown.

STORMSTOWN, September 27.

Simon Sellers, the township chairman, called a meeting which was held in Stormstown on the 25th of September, for the purpose of organizing a Beaver Club. Thirty-six names were enrolled and officers were elected, as follows: President, J. G. Burkett; Secretary, Dr. T. Tobin; Treasurer, H. G. Elder. The President called a meeting to be held on Friday evening, Oct, 1, for the purpose of selecting uniforms, &c.

T. TOBIN, Secretary.

The Coming Winter.

Prophet Foster in Burlington Free Press.

To be forewarned is almost equal to being well armed. Following the drouth will be a long, cold, stormy winter, with a large amount of snow

There will be some beautiful weather between this and the middle of December, and then, for at least three months, extreme cold and snow blockades.

Of course the cold will not be continuous, but during all this long period there will be no general thaw, as we often have the last of January or in February.

Such winters always cause great suffering to man and beast, and the wise will provide plenty of fuel, repair their dwellings and prepare good shelter for stock.

We foretold the great drouth of this year many months before it commenced, and the forces that control the drouth also control the winters as to their severity or mildness.

There is no superstition, no guesswork, no astrology about these predictions, but the calculations are made from what is known of the laws of nature, and if mistakes occur it is from miscalculations, as in any other mathematical problem.

The Dimensions of Heaven.

Temple of Knowledge.

"And he measured the city with a reed, twelve thousand furlongs. The length and the breath and the height of it are equal."—Rev. xxi.16.

Twelve thousand furlongs, 7,920,000 feet, which being cubed, 496,793,088,000,000,000 cubic feet. Half of this we will reserve for the Throne of God and the Court of Heaven, and half the balance for streets, leaving a remainder of 124,198,275,000,000,000,000 cubic feet. Divide this by 4,096, the cubical space in a room sixteen feet square, and there will be 30,321,843,750,000,000 rooms. We will now suppose the world always did and always will contain 990,000,000 inhabitants, and that a generation lasts 33⅓ years, making in all 2,970,000,000 every century, and that the world would stand 100,000 years, or 1,000 centuries, making in all 2,970,000,000,000 inhabitants. Then suppose there were one hundred worlds equal to this in number of inhabitants and duration of years making a total of 297,000,000,000,000 persons, and there would be more than a hundred rooms sixteen feet square for each person.

Fond Mother—"Are you not somewhat astonished at my girl's singing?" Professor—"I must confess I am; but at her age one is naturally venturesome."

I Have been troubled with catarrh of the head and throat for the last five years. About three years ago I commenced the use of Ely's Cream Balm, and from the first application I was relieved. The sense of smell which had been lost, was restored after using one bottle. I have found the Balm the only satisfactory remedy for catarrh I have used, and it has accomplished a cure in my case.—H. L. Meyer, Waverly, N. Y.

Ely's Cream Balm cured me of catarrh and restored my sense of smell. For cold in head it works like magic.—E. H. Sherwood, Banker, Elizabeth, N. J.

—The Centre Hall Reporter and the Philipsburg Ledger are inclined to believe that other papers take news from their columns. If this is a fact, those papers should be proud of it. Pray, why is a paper printed except to furnish news?

Very Remarkable Recovery.

Mr. Geo. V. Willing, of Manchester, Mich., writes; "My wife has been almost helpless for five years, so helpless that she could not turn over in bed alone. She used two bottles of Electric Bitters, and is so much improved that she is able now to do her own work."

Electric Bitters will do all that is claimed for them. Hundreds of testimonials attest their great curative power. Only fifty cents a bottle at J. ZELLER & SON'S.

The Mitten.

(FROM MOLLIE)

This little mit I hope will fit,
'Tis for your hand intended. It took me very long to knit, But I am glad to send it. You'll wonder why I send but one, And think I acted blind-
ly. But one will do the best for you,
And you may think me kindly. It is all wool of good stout yarn, Your yarns are all un-common, And I am sure a a gladder gift was never sent by woman; And by this mitten you will see that you live not forgotten, And when you wear it think of me—It's real and not cotton. I hope tonight you will not write, And say it is un- mated, And think it only half a gift, And feel but half elated; But if you find one will not do, And you can only rest with two, With fingers which are deft ones,
I'll set to work
And send to you
Another mitt—
both left
ones

Excitement in Texas.

Great excitement has been caused in the vicinity of Paris, Texas, by the remarkable recovery of Mr. J. E. Corley, who was so helpless he could not turn in bed, or raise his head; everybody said he was dying of consumption. A trial bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery was sent him. Finding relief, he bought a large bottle and a box of Dr. King's New Life Pills; by the time he had taken two boxes of Pills and two bottles of the Discovery he was well and had gained in flesh thirty six pounds. Trial bottle of this great Discovery for consumption free at J. ZELLER & SON'S.

—The presence of Mr. Robert Cassidy, of Canton, Ohio, in this vicinity, last week, was occasioned by the death of his mother. Mrs. Lucinda D. Cassidy, at Spruce Creek Station. She was buried on Sunday, the 26th.

STATE SIMMONS LIVER REGULATOR

Purely Vegetable.

SAFER AND BETTER

I have been subject to severe spells of Congestion of the Liver, and have been in the habit of taking from 15 to 20 grains of calomel, which generally laid me up for three or four days. Lately I have been taking Simmons Liver Regulator, which gave me relief, without any interruption to business. J. HUGG, MIDDLEPORT, O.

BILIOUSNESS The REGULATOR never fails to cure. I most cheerfully recommend it to all who suffer from Bilious Attacks or any Disease caused by a disarranged state of the Liver. W. R. BERNARD, KANSAS CITY, Mo.

INDIGESTION I suffered intensely with Full Stomach, Headache, etc. A neighbor who had taken Simmons Liver Regulator told me it was a sure cure for my trouble. The first dose I took relieved me very much, and in one week's time I was as strong and hearty as I ever was. It is the best medicine I ever took for Dyspepsia. H. G. CRENSHAW, RICHMOND, VA.

CONSTIPATION Testimony of HIRAM WARNER, Chief-Justice of Ga.: I have used Simmons Liver Regulator for Constipation of my Bowels, caused by a temporary Derangement of the Liver, for the last three or four years, and always with decided benefit.

—The numerous leaks in the water pipes are being repaired.

—The Evangelical Lutheran Synod will meet in Mifflinburg next year.

—Gens. Beaver and Osborne addressed a large meeting at Butler, Pa., on Saturday night.

—It is expected that work will begin at the glass factory here in a week from the present date.

—Chickens are said to be only 10 and 12 cents in Tyrone. Here they bring double that price.

—The conference of the African Methodist Episcopal church was in session Wednesday in Meadville.

—Perhaps Calvin Miller (colored) is the most rapid pedestrian in Bellefonte. How are we to determine?

—Car loads of stone have already arrived to be used in the construction of the Messrs. Collins' new iron furnace.

—The supply of celery is large at present, and the fear is that it will be all used up by the time cold weather comes—when celery is best.

—The Lock Haven Daily Democrat says that Patrick Fitzgerald had his right wrist broken on Friday at Moshannon, caused by a falling tree.

—A special examination was held in this place by Prof. Wolf on Saturday. Nine persons were examined, it being an unusually large class.

—There was snow Friday at Ramey, Clearfield county. We have heard also that some people saw a few flying flakes of snow in this place.

—In Lock Haven butter is only 18 cents per pound; in Bellefonte it is 20 and 25 cents. The difference is in favor of the Centre county farmers.

—The new residence being erected by Mr. J. H. Sands is fast approaching completion and, in appearance, is an important addition to that part of Allegheny street.

—The demand for the DAILY NEWS during the past three weeks has been extraordinary. Every day extra copies were printed, but even then the supply was exhausted.

—Rumors are rife that yet another iron furnace is to be erected in the vicinity of Snow Shoe Intersection, capitalists having purchased property there with that object in view.

—Rev. D. S. Monroe, D. D., officiated on Saturday afternoon, on the occasion of the funeral of the late William McClellan. He was assisted by Revs. Woodcock and Crittenden.

—The twelfth annual convention of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union of Pennsylvania will be held in Franklin street M. E. church, Wilkesbarre, October 13th, 14th and 15th.

—The sermon delivered by Rev. D. S. Monroe, D. D., in the M. E. church Sunday evening, was a very excellent effort, delivered with his usual eloquence. The theme was the death and resurrection of Christ.

—The Good Templar Lodge of this place will meet next week on Monday instead of Tuesday evening, because on the latter evening the hall will be used by the Y. M. C. A. secretaries who are to meet here.

—The Holy Communion was administered in several of the churches of this place on Sunday, among them the Episcopal and Presbyterian. At the latter church several persons were admitted to membership.

—It was Bryant who wrote about the autumn season as the melancholy days, the saddest of the year. But there is much of beauty, gaiety and liveliness about them, despite the solemn poetry which they inspired.

—The Knights of Labor picnic in Philipsburg was a large gathering. Butler was there, although we hear that he did not make a free trade speech, probably being prevented from doing so by the notice in the DAILY NEWS.

—The color of the foliage on the trees is becoming exquisitely lovely. On Sunday we noticed one tree in front of the Episcopal church, the leaves of which made a beautiful picture, the effect being brightened by the sunlight.

—Young man, do you know that you can lawfully hunt deer during this month and until December 15? Do your best, and if you fail in your hunt for any of the dear young ladies inform us and we'll give you the proper instructions.

—A twelve-year-old son of Steele Hunter, of this place, fell from a hickory nut tree on Sunday afternoon, breaking his arm. We also hear that a young girl in Milesburg broke her arm on Sunday, in what way or her name we have not learned.

—Among the numerous passengers who arrived from Centre Hall on the morning train Monday, were many of those who had been in attendance at Synod in that place. We noticed among them Miss Nannie Britt, of Wheeling West Virginia, Rev. S. E. Furst, of New Berlin, and Dr. and Mrs. J. W. Rhone, of this borough.

Spiritual Lessons from the Creation.

The services in the Protestant Episcopal church, Sunday, were such as to greatly edify the rather large congregations who assembled. Morning prayer and the Holy Communion in the morning and a few remarks from the new rector, Rev. J. O. Davis, concerning his relations to the parish, and at night evening prayer, with the music well rendered and a sermon which contained the most valuable spiritual lessons. The rector read for his text the first five verses of the book Genesis, and said that it was not his purpose to say a word concerning the length of the days in which God created the world—whether they were of twenty-four hours each or millions of years. But he proceeded to draw a spiritual meaning from the entire work of creation, which is certainly very full of significance. Among the analogies which we remember was to compare the world in its condition of chaos to the soul of man before it is reconstructed by the work of grace in the heart. God might have spoken the word and made the world beautiful and complete at once, but it was not His will or way. Day by day the work went on. First the faint glimmer and glow of light, then the evening. The darkness was not the same as before the first advent of light, neither is the soul of man the same when it undergoes these periods of darkness which sometimes come in the course of early Christian experience. Then succeeded the full light of the sun, and the beautifying of the world by the creation of fish, fowl, fruit, grass, etc. This latter part of creation was like the ornamentation of the Christian life in its later experiences, as the fruits of the Spirit become part of the life. The last work of creation was to make man in the image of God. So is the Christian life not complete until the image of God is formed within, until God's will becomes our will and His Spirit controls all our actions. The seventh day was not followed by an evening, so when we enter upon the full realization of happiness and perfection, there will be no darkness at all, but all will be light.

Another Large Iron Furnace for Bellefonte.

The feeling of pleasure that is entertained by our citizens because of the erection of an extensive iron furnace by the Bellefonte Iron Company may now be increased at least twofold by the assurance of another equally large and just as close to our town. Those who read the DAILY NEWS of Friday noticed that a proposal had been made by capitalists to purchase a hundred acres of land for $20,000. Before the DAILY NEWS was on press a sale had been consummated of equal importance, but on terms even more favorable to both purchasers and sellers. The Messrs. Collins have purchased eighty-seven acres of land owned by the Thomas estate. The land sold includes Half Moon hill and other land adjoining. The price paid was $25,000.

It is true the Bellefonte Iron Company have two months the advantage of the Messrs. Collins in the erection of their furnace, but what are two months where the pluck and enterprise known to be possessed by the Messrs. Collins are concerned? We have heard one gentleman who knows all about it say that the Messrs. Collins will be manufacturing iron before the Bellefonte Iron Company will. Of that we cannot positively state, but we wouldn't be surprised if such should be the case. We congratulate all the parties concerned in the transaction, and also congratulate the town at the pleasant prospects. Bellefonte is in a fair way to rival Birmingham, Alabama, Pittsburgh, Pa., or any other community that has been putting on business airs.

Mr. Scott, a son of the late Thomas Scott, is interested with the Messrs. Collins in this enterprise.

A Religious Gathering.

The sessions of the Evangelical Lutheran Synod of Central Pennsylvania, which have been held in the Lutheran church at Centre Hall, beginning on Wednesday evening and ending on Sunday, have been extremely pleasant and profitable. The attendance of ministers and laymen was large. Among the distinguished visitors were Rev. Dr. Conrad, editor of the Lutheran Observer, and Rev. Dr. McKnight, President of Pennsylvania College at Gettysburg.

Sunday was an interesting occasion. The usual custom of distributing the ministers among the churches of the town was not adhered to. An excellent sermon was listened to in the morning by a large congregation. The Holy Communion was also administered in a solemn and impressive manner. The sermon was delivered by Rev. Mr. Scott.

A children's meeting was held in the afternoon, addresses being delivered by Revs. Reimsnyder, of Lewisburg; A. N. Warner, of Pine Grove Mills, and P. Graif, of Mifflin.

Rev. Mr. Ernest, of Mifflinburg, delivered the sermon in the evening, and three candidates were licensed to preach, viz., Revs. Jacob Stover, S. D. Dornblaser and —— Fichtborn.

The church was not large enough to admit the people who sought admission at the various services, many people being turned away each time. It will long be remembered as an occasion of great religious importance to the Lutheran population of Centre Hall and vicinity.

—Sunday was a pleasant day and the sugar and salt folks were all at church.

Meeting of Council.

Among those who appeared before council Monday evening, was Mr. Daniel Rhoads. He and many others desire a boardwalk built along the north side of Beaver street, from Dr Dartt's houses to the turnpike and thence to connect with the system of boardwalks extending into town. This matter was referred to the Street committee, who promised to examine it next morning and will probably report favorably and notify property owners to build the walks.

Mr. Arthur Brown asked for a crossing on the south side of Bishop street across Allegheny; also referred to Street committee.

The Street committee reported that Mr. Butts, the engineer, had been instructed to give Mr. Sands a grade for a pavement.

The Market committee reported $7.50 in fees.

The Finance committee reported, the Water and Fire and Police committees having nothing to report.

Alphabetical Hall Nominated.

The Democratic Congressional conference met on Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock in Lock Haven. Hon. William A. Wallace, of Clearfield, withdrew his name and the ballot, taken just after his letter was read, stood: Reed 6, Hall 5, Baker 4, Peale 3. Before many ballots had been taken James K. Polk Hall, of little Elk Co., received enough ballots to nominate him.

The result gives great dissatisfaction to the Democrats in this county, as the nominee, despite his alphabetical name, is a person of very small mental calibre and is trifling and dudeish in his behavior, entirely unworthy to succeed Hon. A. G. Curtin as the representative from this district.

The Republicans have a choice of three men, any one of whom can be elected easily over Mr. Hall. First is Hon. James P. Coburn, of Aaronsburg, this county; second, Gen. John Patton, of Curwensville, Clearfield county; and third, Hon. Thos. Murray, of Clearfield town. Make a wise choice.

Marriage Licenses in the County.

During the first marriage year from October 1, 1885, to the same date this year, 231 marriage licenses were granted by Register McClain. August was the most noted month for marriages, 27 licenses granted. As will be noticed, the month of January was the poorest for marriages, only 14 licenses being granted. The number for each month is here given:

October	15
November	16
December	23
January	14
February	21
March	19
April	17
May	18
June	26
July	17
August	27
September	21
Total	231

Thus far this year one license has been granted for each day of October, and Tuesday began favorably, Will Pearlstein being called out at half-past 6 o'clock to fill out a license.

A Former Bellefonter in the West.

Rev. Jno. Hewitt, rector of St. James Episcopal church of Fremont, Neb., has been traveling in the Black Hills country looking for stone with which to construct a handsome new church building which the vestry of his church have contracted for. It will be of the English gothic style of architecture, about 95 feet in length, and 50 feet in width, with a tower on the northwest corner. The material used will be Black Hills light grey sandstone, and although it will be a handsome building, the cost will not exceed $13,000. F. M. Ellis & Co., of Omaha, furnished the plans for the building, and James Carson & Co., of Rawlins, Wyoming, have the contract for building it. We are glad to know that the former much-admired rector of the church here is doing so much for his parish in the West.

He is a Candidate.

This district will never want a candidate for Congress. T. P. Rynder, Esq., chairman of the Greenback State Executive Committee, got ahead of all the other candidates this year and has been in the field for a week or longer. He is already doing yeoman work for the laborers whom he represents. He went out to Philipsburg and headed off Butler and other Democrats who wanted to impose some of their nonsense on the representatives of labor. He won't permit persons from a distance to come into his congressional district and influence those who are to be his constituents. Mr. Rynder has an extensive knowledge of labor and financial subjects, and any one who wants to get ahead of him will have to rise very early in the morning.

Death of Allie A. Murray.

The death of this young lady is briefly referred to in another part of this paper. She was the daughter of Charles and Sarah C. Murray. Her father lives at Julian Furnace and is the division boss on the Bald Eagle railroad. After a long illness of consumption, during seven weeks being confined to her bed, she died at 10 o'clock Saturday night. She suffered much, but bore her sufferings patiently. Her age was fourteen years and eight days.

—A tramp named Michael Casey had a hearing before Judge Linn to-day, on the charge of using insulting language to a woman and was sent to jail.

Employment for a Teacher.

MR. EDITOR: Is needle work or crocheting a study? and would it be allowable if I were a school teacher to work at it during school hours whether the classes were reciting or not? ANON.

Snow Shoe, October 1, 1886.

These accomplishments may be a study and should be careful studied and acquired by every lady. But if you are a tschool teacher you should give your entire attention, during school hours, to the studies and the duties demanded of you by the rules of the school board. You have contracted to teach in school certain studies, of which the art of working with the needle is not one, and you should not teach or engage in the practice of any art or study that will interfere with the faithful discharge of your duties as a teacher. Your whole time during certain hours of each day you have sold to your employers, and you should allow no private enterprise or diversion of your own to take up your attention. You cannot do it and be a faithful teacher.

Out of Order.

Rev. Earnest, of Mifflinburg, preached the ordination sermon before the Lutheran Synod at Centre Hall, Sunday evening, which is usually addressed to young men who are applicants for ordination or license to preach, and is a very solemn and impressive service. But the reverend gentleman should understand that any congregation or charge in the General Synod has the undoubted right to elect and call for their pastor any regularly ordained minister who is in good standing in the church and synod to which he belongs without being called in question for such action in an ordination sermon. And as to his reference to the minister, we would refer Rev. Earnest to one of his very appropriate quotations, viz., "Touch not mine anointed, and do my prophets no harm."

AUDITOR.

Present to the Good Templar Lodge

For a week or longer, an ornate and handsome dark wood desk has occupied a place in the Y. M. C. A. hall. It is placed in the most conspicuous part of the room, on the platform, and is used by the speakers for whatever service may be in progress there. So handsome is it that it has been given the chief place of honor, the plainer desk, which did occupy the place, having been discarded. We learn that it was a present from Will F. Reber to the Good Templars for the use of the Chief Templar. It will ornament the hall as long as the Good Templars meet there. Of course, it was peculiarly acceptable and the Good Templars acknowledge themselves under profound obligations to Mr. Reber.

FRANK GRAW, Secretary.

—Our Democratic friends are making quite elaborate preparations for their "big meeting." There will be no torch light parade, but they expect to make the town brilliant with electric light and inscriptions and mottoes. Then shall be brought to pass the saying which was written by Jonadab, the Prophet, "The light shined on the Democratic hosts, but they observed it not. They inspired their hearts with pretty sentiments, but didn't walk therein. Great shall be the confusion of the Democrats when election day shall come. They followed a way that was Black into the heart of Africa. There they were lost in the jungle, while Beaver went to Harrisburg."

—Rev. G. W. Lesher, of McAllisterville, Pa., was in town last week and also over at Centre Hall. A great many people seemed to be extremely glad to see him. Rev. Lesher was at one time a teacher at the Boalsburg Academy and we heard a gentleman say that he was the best teacher ever in this county. Of that, however, we don't pretend to judge, but will inform the public that Clem. Dale and John Kline, Esqs., are among the former pupils upon whom he used the brich rod and people can judge by them of the results of his work.

Death of Jacob VanPool.

At 4 o'clock a. m., Monday, Jacob VanPool, an aged citizen of Port Matilda, breathed his last after a protracted illness. His age was 84 years and he was the son of Christy VanPool, of Half Moon township, who lived to be 112 years of age. He was never married. During the larger part and perhaps all of his life he was a citizen of Centre County. He was quite well known and frequently visited Bellefonte. The funeral occurred on Tuesday.

Temperance Topics.

The W. C. T. U., of this place, expect to hold a festival very soon. The exact date has not yet been fixed, but will be announced in a few days. Please keep the track clear for them.

In a short time the Union will also begin a series of temperance meetings, to be addressed by Mrs. Bradley, a celebrated temperance lecturer from England. They will be very interesting.

—The new Roman Catholic church structure has reached a dizzy height, but it still has to go quite a distance higher. It is to be a magnificent building, far surpassing any other church structure in the borough. In most places where the Catholic faith is held the place is marked by a costly church edifice, which is highly commendable, for all are commended to honor the Lord with the first fruits of their substance.

Personal Pencilings.

S. S. Blair's special car was in Bellefonte Wednesday.

Andrew Brockerhoff went to Philadelphia Monday evening.

Mr. C. F. Hennick, of Millheim, was a caller at this office on Friday.

Rev. Dr. Hamill, of Oak Hall, was an arrival on the train from Lemont Monday morning.

Miss Lora Albright, of Lewistown, is the guest of the Misses Laughlin, of Lamb street.

Mr. James Laurie is one of the polite employes on the mail train of the Bald Eagle railroad.

Mr. Francis Speer conducted the Y. M. C. A. meeting Sunday afternoon and it was very interesting.

Mrs. Yeager, Mrs. Chas. Smith and Mrs. Wm. Lyons are in Pittsburg, the guests of Mrs. Peeble.

Mrs. Nancy Confer, of Curtin, spent Monday with her sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Jacobs, on Lamb street.

Mr. George Bible and wife and Miss Mary Bradley are at home again afer two weeks spent in Philadelphia.

Mr. John Bair is now in Richmond, Va., among the delegates of the K. of L. It is an immense convention.

Mrs. Rush Larimer and Mrs. Will Larimer went to Clearfield on Tuesday, September 28, to visit Mrs. Robt. Larimer.

Mr. Ezra Fisher, a prominent farmer from Union township, enjoyed the pleasant weather in Bellefonte Tuesday morning.

Mr. A. C. Moyer, of Sandy Ridge, one of the proprietors of A. C. Moyer & Bro's prosperous grocery store, was in Bellefonte Tuesday.

Hon. W. W. Betts, of Clearfield, the Democratic nominee for State Senator, is a native of Centre county, Boalsburg being his birthplace.

Rev. Mr. Kline, rector of the Episcopal church in Allentown, was among the worshippers in the Episcopal church in this place on Sunday morning.

Miss Mary Macbride, the well-known milliner, went to Philadelphia Tuesday morning to buy new goods and to learn the latest mode in her line.

Rev. Chas. T. Steck officiated at the services at State College on Sunday. He is much admired by both faculty and students of that institution.

Miss Arnold, of Williamsport, after a visit of several weeks at the home of Mr. Jacob Heylmun, on Curtin street, departed Saturday morning.

Miss Bettie Runk, a bright and accomplished young lady from Philipsburg, is spending several days with her cousin, Miss Florence Jacobs, on Lamb street.

Hon. Jno. A. Woodward, of Howard, was in town Saturday. His farm is prospering as well as usual, even if he cannot say the same of his political campaign.

Mrs. Hassall and Miss Jennie Hassall, who have been guests at Mr. F. C. Montgomery's residence, departed on Tuesday morning for their home in Philadelphia.

Mr. Aaron Williams has gone to the West, to look after the interests of his property in that direction. His farm near Fort Collins, Col., has yielded very bountifully this season.

Rev. W. H. H. Snyder, of Harrisburg, whom the Reformed congregation called as pastor, has accepted. He is an able minister and has attracted much attention by his brilliant pulpit eloquence.

Among the guests assembled at the home of John Ardell, Jr., are Miss Fannie Beach, of Montrose, Susquehanna county, Pa., and Mr. and Mrs. George Ardell, of Blood Station, New York State.

Mrs. Chas. Stockham and daughter, of Camden, N. J., and Mrs. Rachel Malin, of Chestnut Hill, Philadelphia, who have been spending the past ten days at the residence of Mrs. Bush, departed Thursmorning.

By the way, we saw Mr. R. A. Cassiday, of Canton, Ohio, on the street last week, but we have been so mixed up with Lutheran ladies that we really forget just when we had the pleasure of feasting our eyes on him.

Have you noticed the smile on the left corner of Mr. George White's mouth? On the first of the month a handsome infant boy came to his house, and now the Bush House is hardly large enough to contain George.

Judge A. O. Furst received a special delivery letter on Saturday and the messenger made quick time to his house. The system is now extended to postal cards and packages, on which must be a 10-cent special delivery stamp.

J. M. Ross, of Linden Hall, spent part of Friday in Bellefonte. He is the proprietor of a very fine farm near that place, as all know who have visited him and have tested the excellent produce with which he supplies his family and many others who purchase from him.

Mrs. Thomas Weaver, of Moshannon, visited Philipsburg, on Wednesday, the 27th. Mrs. Weaver is somewhat famous for her skill in preparing jellies, jams, preserves, canned and dried fruits, etc. It is whispered that while in Philipsburg she visited a dentist, which indicates that she is about to provide herself with a new set of teeth to better enable her to enjoy the many delicacies which she has prepared for Winter use.

Rev. D. S. Monroe, D. D., went to Hollidaysburg Tuesday evening to attend the first conference of the Altoona district, M. E. church.

Dr J. W. Rhone was elected a delegate to the General Synod of the Evangelical Lutheran church, to meet in Omaha, Neb., next year.

Mr. W. I. Fleming went away Tuesday evening at 5.20 o'clock. He informed our reporter that his destination was San Francisco.

Mr. John Moore went a-gunning Wednesday. The woods may be full of 'em now, but there won't be many left when Mr. Moore returns.

Mr. James Milliken is still suffering from the effects of the injury done to his left hand some time ago while protecting a cat from a dog, the cat biting his hand painfully.

Mrs. Hewitt, wife of Rev. John Hewitt, of Fremont, Neb., went on Wednesday to Chicago, where she will remain for a short time before resuming her journey to her far western home.

Mr. William Hastings, brother of Col. D. H. Hastings, returned to this country from Europe a few days ago, and has been visiting friends in Philadelphia. He was expected here on Wednesday. Mr. Hastings is a much-traveled gentleman and Rome, Paris, London, Berlin and Vienna are as familiar to him as home. The result of this experience evidences itself in broad information and liberal culture. His knowledge of the foreign languges enables him to gather and retain much more than many travelers could possibly do. Wherever he goes he can converse with the people in their mother tongue. This renders him entertaining as a companion and instructive in conversation.

—The Philadelphia Times has taken another new departure and we do not believe it is a good one. It has changed its type, narrowed its columns and assumed a less handsome appearance for the sake of reducing in price to one cent per copy, which it has done. It is a bold move. The Times has always been a bright, snappy paper, though not reliable, and we fear that by the change it will lose this distinguishing and attractive quality. If the Times could have preserved its old appearance and make up while it reduced the price the change would have been indeed a notable one, but now we do not see what claims it can have to supplant other 1 cent journals.

—The walking match attracted considerable attention last Saturday afternoon. There were several entries and good time was made. Charley Crider started off ahead and kept the lead to the close of the match, evidently increasing it, as we hear he was about six miles ahead when the match ended. Harry Williams was second. The distance traveled by Crider was about fifty miles, which he completed in less than ten hours. Of course, all the boys were pretty weary when their journey was completed.

—Why do the papers continue to publish so much of the stuff written by Jeff Davis? He certainly deserves no recognition from any one. Being an unrepentant rebel and a citizen of no country under the sun, no reliance can be placed on his word. It is true he still lives, but his life and example are such as all good citizens should abhor. In a question between Davis and Sherman any one of sound mind will believe the latter.

—The day appointed for dedicating the new Methodist Episcopal church at Pine Glenn, on Snow Shoe circuit, is October 10. The church will cost about $1500. It has two rooms and is built on one of the Church Extension Society plans, slightly modified. There will be between $300 and $400 to be raised on the day of dedication. Rev. E. J. Gray, D. D., of Dickinson Seminary, and other ministers are expected to be present.

—The Republicans of Milesburg held a meeting on Monday night, the Nail Works Beaver Club being present. There was a fine torch light parade and when the meeting had been called to order it was addressed by Jno. G. Love and C. P. Hewes, Esqs. The citizens of Milesburg and Boggs township are literally unanimous in their support of Gen. Beaver and the entire Republican State and county tickets.

—Our friend, George Rhule, has been a creature of misfortune of late. Not long ago he was bitten by a snake, and now he is nursing a very sore hand, occasioned by falling on a rusty spike, a few days ago, while tearing down a porch at W. H. Wigton's residence. The spike penetrated his hand quite a depth, almost going through it.—Philipsburg Journal.

—Two prisoners got out of jail Tuesday night. They were the tramps who were sent to jail on Monday. Their escape is a blessing rather than a loss to the county. The men who had been employed on the steam heat apparatus in the jail left open the register hole in the centre of the jail floor, and it was through that aperture that they made their escape.

MARRIED.

BAKER—MEEKER.—September 22rd, at Snow Shoe, by Rev. M. L. Jackson, Mr. Charles Baker and Miss Sarah Meeker, both of Pine Glen, Centre County Pa.
